War Summary of The Latest Events

British, Canadian, Italian and French troops are hammering the foe persistently and fiercely. On all the fronts the fighting is of the most desperate character, and on the western front particularly the Hun is battling like a man who has been driven so far, but is determined to die rather than give way another inch. He is being compelled to give way just the same, and is admitting it grudgingly enough, and in some cases only indirectly. His only comfort is on the Eastern front, where Petrograd admits that an attack has been commenced on the Riga or northern end of the Russians line, and that Russian troops have retreated for a small distance. The further developments in this area will be watched with some anxiety. In Mesopotamia the British are again on the move.

A new British attack in the Ypres area over difficult ground met with bitter opposition, but resulted in the capture of important strategic positions for a mile along the Ypres-Menin road to a depth of nearly one-third of a mile, and farther to the north an advance of half a mile deep over a front of two and a half miles.

The prisoners taken, says the British official report, bear a small ratio to the losses inflicted upon the Germans, a sure indication of the intensity of the fighting and the realization of both sides that the struggle is to have an important bearing upon the whole situation in Flanders and northern France. The advance along the Ypres-Menin road, if it could be pushed right on to Menin, would be a direct menace to Lille on the south and Roulers on the north. Such a consummation would undoubtedly involve the bitterest fighting of the war, if present indications hold good. It may, indeed, be the intention of the Germans to risk much in the struggle now opened, and for the Allies nothing better could be asked than that the foe should stand rather than retreat voluntarily. It would then be seen whether it is possible to pierce the line and bring about the great pitched engagement that sooner or later must come. The British captured a number of observation points on high ground during the fighting and wiped out several fortified posts on farms. In the Lens area the Canadians have repulsed several more counter-attacks and gained more territory around the coal city. The prisoners taken by them now total nearly 1,600. News of the fighting here adds to the importance of the defeat inflicted by the men from the Dominion on the Prussians. The Germans admit the loss of some territory around Lens.

On the Verdun front the French have been subjected to a number of heavy attacks, but have held all the gains made in the recent fighting. Berlin's way of acknowledging defeat here is to say that French attacks from such and such points, naming the places captured by Petain's men have been checked. The number of prisoners taken by the French is over 7,000, of whom more than 6,000 are unwounded.

Austrian admissions are the best tribute to the successes being gained by the Italians in the new drive for Trieste. These are to the effect that on the important height positions, the capture of which is essential to a successful pressing forward by our ally, fighting is proceeding. The Austrians claim that the day was

Austrian admissions are the best tribute to the successes being gained by the Italians in the new drive for Trieste. These are to the effect that on the important height positions, the capture of which is essential to a successful pressing forward by our ally, fighting is proceeding. The Austrians claim that the day was favorable to them on the whole, though they used the word "fluctuating" in regard to the fighting in some areas, and admit withdrawals on some Italian territory in the north. The Italian report is quietly confident, declaring that successes have been gained along the whole front. Some thirty guns have been captured and considerable other booty, while the prisoners are mounting to the 15,000 mark. Percival Gibbons, in a despatch from the Italian front, says that the army never was better supplied in the way of artillery, and never so well prepared for its greatest effort to date in the war.

Sheraban, a town northeast of Bagdad, near the Persian border, and on the left bank of the Diale River, has been captured by the British Mesopotamia force. Little resistance seems to have been offered. If the Russians are in any position for an advance, big events may be expected in this area. It has been more than once said that British forces in Persia, primarily to restore order, have been considerably strengthened, and have organized a number of Persians, who may be able to aid in a campaign from the Persian side of the border.

British merchant vessels sunk during the past week totalled fifteen of more than 1,600 tons, three of less than 1,600 tons, and two fishing vessels, compared with fourteen, two and three, respectively, in the previous period. The submarine menace has not yet been solved, but it looks as though it would be beaten.

Airplane raids on the Kentish and Yorkshire roads resulted in the killing of eleven and the injuring of thirteen people at Dover. Some damage, but not of importance, was inflicted at Ramsgate and at one or two small villages. Three of the raiders were brought down, and the attempts of the other craft to penetrate inland were frustrated.

COSTS $350,000 TO STAGE EXHIBITION

Special Attractions at the Canadian National Above the Ordinary

It costs upwards of $350,000 to stage and prepare the Canadian National Exhibition each year. Much of this is spent on special attractions for which the Exhibition is famous. No expense or effort has been spared in securing for Confederation Year the finest array of acts for the Hippodrome Show that will be given as usual in front of the Grand Stand every afternoon and evening. There will be a galaxy of stars of the show world filling three stages at the one time. One of the outstanding features will be the Al Golem Troupe, court artists to the Shah of Persia, who present the most picturesque and sensational acrobatic novelty now before the public. The remainder of the programme will be in keeping with this wonderful attraction.

RURAL SCHOOL FAIRS

Eleven School Fairs will be held in the County of Lennox and Addington this year. Last year our School Fairs were very successful and Lennox and Addington County led Ontario in total number of exhibits, number of poultry shown, and also in money collected for Patriotic purposes.

Last year (1916) the teachers and children of the County sold Patriotic Buttons and served lunch at the School Fairs and collected the sum of $321.87. This amount was sent to Toronto and was almost as much as the next two leading counties in Ontario contributed. The total amount collected by 44 counties was $3518.41. The expenses of buttons, trays, etc amounted to $829.14 leaving a balance of $2689.27. With this money a special automobile is being built to hold about 12 or 14 soldiers, which will be used to carry returned soldiers from the hospitals to the educational classes which are being carried on at Toronto University. Soldiers that are blind are taught to do work so that they may be able to earn part of their living and soldiers who have lost an arm are taught how to use the other. In this way all soldiers are given training so that they may be able to work. The car will be much appreciated as the soldiers, up to the present, have had no means of transportation.

In the previous year (1915) the money collected by the children was used to buy a motor ambulance which was sent to France.

This year (1917) the school children of Ontario will again sell buttons at the School Fairs, and the money obtained from the sale of these will be used for some similar purpose.

The dates of the School Fairs for 1917 are as follows:

Denbigh.....	Sept. 6th
Flinton.....	Sept. 8th
Odessa.....	Sept 17th
Selby.....	Sept 18th
Centreville.....	Sept. 19th
Tamworth.....	Sept. 20th
S. Fredericksburgh	Oct. 1st
N. Fredericksburgh	Oct. 2nd
Newburgh.....	Oct. 3rd
Adolphustown.....	Oct. 4th
Stella.....	Oct. 5th

At each School Fair it is requested that the ladies of the Township co-operate to serve a good lunch. The Red Cross Ladies, Church Organizations or any similar body of ladies that wish to hold lunch in any Township are requested to communicate at once with Mr. G. B. Curran and receive permission to serve lunch. It is hoped that the ladies of every Township will co-operate so that the children and visitors will receive a good meal at the School Fair.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Friday night added to the ga Allied armies have achieved week on the Belgian front, a further progress on the between Bixschoote and Lange A strong point of support east Steenbeke River was captured.

The French have complete conquest of the enemy to south of the St. Jansbeek River the Breenbeek River, which is off from the St. Jansbeek to the Two strong German redoubt Lillas and Mondovi Farm, which held out against all attacks at beginning of the Allied offensive Thursday, have capitulated, as French have pushed their forward to a natural line form these waterways.

Les Lillas redoubt lies a third of a mile west of the junction of the St. Jansbeek and the Breenbeek. It was a large fortification concrete and steel, armed with machine-guns. Although garrison was small, their position well-nigh impregnable so far as fantry attacks were concerned it was only when heavy artillery brought up and concentrated on late Friday that the Germans rendered.

When the French advanced day they passed on either Les Lillas, leaving the redoubt pocket. Since then there has been continual fighting about this position, which was rendered strong through the presence of considerable flooded tract and artificial ditches. The intense a fire Saturday played havoc with the redoubt, and the garrison finally rendered, an officer and three men being taken prisoner. The officer said that they had intended to fight to a finish, but changing minds when the big guns began work.

Mondovi Farm was a similar position, lying in an angle formed by the St. Jansbeek and the Breenbeek in the case of Les Lillas, the artillery bombarded the garrison submission, and they surrendered Saturday night. The Germans later tried to shell the out of Mondovi, but were unsuccessful.

The total number of prisoners captured by the French yet available, but the prisoners aggregate over 400, and about guns were taken. The small number of prisoners is due largely to the fact that the Germans were holding out of this section in small garrisons numerous redoubts like Les Lillas.

BIG ITALIAN OFFENSIVE.

Many Cannon and 7,500 Prisoners Already Captured.

ROME, Aug. 21.—The Italians in their offensive on the Isonzo begun Sunday, have crossed the Isonzo River and already have taken 7,500 prisoners, it was officially announced by the War Department Monday.

The Italian fliers are giving their infantry valuable support, more than 200 of them being engaged in attacking with bombs and machine gun fire Austrian troop formations behind the lines. At last accounts the Italian guns were energetically proceeding with the work of destruction of the new positions taken up by the Austrians, endeavoring to blast a road through the defences. In order to make more easy the march of the Italian troops toward Trieste, Austria's principal seaport, lying at the head of the Adriatic Sea.

The statement from Italian General Headquarters reads:

"A battle is proceeding on the Julian Alps front. Yesterday morning, after a bombardment of 24 hours, during which our artillery shelled the enemy positions with ever-increasing intensity, masses of our infantry commenced the advance toward their objectives. To the north of Anovo (7½ miles north of Gorizia), after having brilliantly overcome technical difficulties and the resistance of the enemy, numerous pontoons were thrown across the Isonzo, and our troops passed over to the left bank of the river.

"From Plava to the sea, after having crossed the first line of the enemy, which had been destroyed completely, our troops brought pressure to bear upon him. Resisting strongly and being supported by considerable artillery and a large number of machine guns, the enemy offered desperate resistance.

"Altogether 208 aeroplanes indefatigably participated in the battle, attacking repeatedly with bombs and machine guns the troops assembled to the rear of the enemy's positions. The infantry action vigorously continues while the artillery also is proceeding energetically with its work of destruction.

"The enemy's losses are very serious. The booty reported up to the present is very considerable. Some guns and a large number of machine guns are in our hands. Up to last evening more than 7,500 men and about 100 officers passed into our collecting stations."

"Italy's great offensive had spread violent fighting over nearly a hundred miles of front in the Julian, Carso, and Isonzo fronts late Monday. The Italian drive, beginning Sunday night, was reported as extending everywhere with splendid progress and great captures of Austrians. British and French gunners are co-operating with General Cadorna's troops. Every inch of Austrian defences, from the Julian Alps to the sea, is under the pounding fire of the Allied artillery."

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

Winnipeg, Aug. 20.—With the usual buyers in the market today the demand for cash wheat showed no slackening.

There was some improvement in price spreads for the various grades, but offerings filtered out lightly. Cash oats were in fair demand, with offerings below requirements. Some lots of No. 2 C.W. sold at the October price. Cash barley and flax dealers are evidently waiting for the new crop, as they are inactive in the market, and today's situation in these cereals was little changed from Saturday. October and December oats and October flax were the only futures in which any business was done. Prices were some better than Saturday's close.

October wheat and barley were entirely neglected. October wheat closed unchanged. October oats were ¼c higher. December closed one cent higher. May one cent higher. Barley closed unchanged. October flax closed ¼c up. November 5c up, and December 5½c up.

NEW DEFENCE TACTICS

Germans Cannot Stand Against British Gunners.

Haig's Artillery Buried Front Line of Foe Under Avalanche of Shells, and Teutons Are Now Scattering Advance Forces in Front Lines Over Great Depth.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The beginning of the fourth year of the war finds the Germans rapidly making a radical change in their methods of defence along the British front in France. The continuous lines of wonderfully constructed forward trenches, with deep dugouts, in which lived and fought great numbers of men, are fast passing into the discard.

The enemy is adopting the system of scattering his advance forces over a great depth. Cunningly constructed strongholds among the myriad of shell holes along the front now conceal innumerable small and isolated garrisons of men who formerly fought shoulder to shoulder along great stretches of picturesque ditches, through which communication was not broken for miles.

This alteration has been brought about by the ever-growing preponderance of British artillery, which has buried the German front line trenches under an avalanche of shells, and has left the defences nothing but heaped furrows of earth, and has rendered the famous dugouts mantraps in which countless thousands have lost their lives without a chance of fighting back.

The continuous deluge of breaking steel made repair work on the trenches impossible, and as the Germans were gradually pushed back they of necessity were forced to invent another mode of stemming the ever-advancing tide.

So it has come to be depth of defences on which the German depends in many places rather than the strength of his first-line trenches. The recent allied offensive east and north of Ypres disclosed many examples of his new scheme of fighting, which bids fair to take the place of the tactics of the past three years.

Wherever the German front-line trenches have been made untenable, or where there is an attack, these new conditions are found. Back of these outposts are great nests, each consisting of two or three craters connected by underground passages that often lead to dugouts. As the entire territory is pitted with holes this is one of the most effective

French troops. They are exceedingly good over their trenches and their morale is at the pitch.

Work of the French engineers is difficult terrain, which as it reaches the river is a veritable wall, had been thrust forward, and when it came to bridging, the French were at a disadvantage. It was not until Thursday there was not the slightest delay in getting the numbers of the French.

French air service played an important part in the advance, going of the infantry all along the front keeping up the contact of the French at the height of 200 and 300 metres. The German airmen ventured in the direction of the French, were driven back, and the French cleared of enemy machines. In addition to patrol work the French airmen did good execution machine guns and bombs on the French.

Work of the Aisne several German attacks, especially east of the front farm, were repulsed. In Champagne artillery fire prepared an attack which the enemy repulsed in the sector of Mas-

At the eastern end of the line a German attack near each was beaten back.

The French violently bombarding the German positions, German troops last made consecutive attacks on the French trenches in the Priest West of Muerthe and Moselle and in the Vosges mountains east of Badonviller and north of the front. The French report issued Sunday says all German assaults were repulsed at the Aisne front, it is announced, and the French.

Entente and Selzaete Bombed.

VAN GHENT, Holland, Aug. 21.—Entente explosions of bombs and by Entente Allied airplanes and shortly before midnight on the frontier, 18 miles north of awakened all the inhabitants of the town. General Purgasoff Killed.

ROGRAD, Aug. 21.—A report received by Premier Kerensky according to The Novoe Hermeye, killing of General Purgasoff officers. A certain company of the paper states, refused to obey a newly-appointed commander, whereupon General Purgasoff ordered the company disbanded and the leaders of the mutiny arrested. The mutineers then surrounded General Purgasoff and beat him to death with the butts of their rifles help arrived.

Richardson, former Consul-General, M.P.P. for East Hastings.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—A smashing French victory on the Verdun front is recorded in the official report issued by the War Office Monday night. The French have captured the enemy defences on both sides of the Meuse over a front of more than eleven miles, penetrating the German line at divers points to a depth of a mile and a quarter. More than 4,000 unwounded German prisoners have been taken.

The new territory taken by the French embraces positions that have literally weltered in French and German blood in battles that have waged to and fro since the German Crown Prince started his most costly enterprise, the taking of Verdun, which resulted in utter failure as a military manoeuvre and cost the lives of tens of thousands of the men.

Notable among the captured positions are the Avocourt Wood, the two summits of Le Mort Homme, the Corbeaux Wood and Champneuville, all of which were held despite vicious counter-attacks by the Germans, which were broken up by the French fire with heavy casualties. French airmen aided materially the infantry in the press forward, swooping low over the German forces and emptying their machine guns into the ranks, and in flights in the air with German protecting machines, eleven of which were sent hurtling to the ground.

The text of Monday night's statement reads:

"On the front north of Verdun our troops captured on both sides of the Meuse enemy defences on a front of 18 kilometres and to a depth which exceeded two kilometres at certain points. On the left bank of the river we held in particular the Avocourt Wood, the two summits of Le Mort Homme, Corbeaux Wood, and Cumieres. On the right bank we have occupied Talou Ridge, Champ, Champneuville, Hill 344, Mormont Farm, and Hill 240, north of Louvemont."

"On the right our troops have advanced considerably in the Bois des Fosse and the Bois de Chaume."

"The number of unwounded prisoners taken is more than 4,000."

"The Germans carried out violent counter-attacks in the Avocourt Wood and against Le Mort Homme and Hill 344, but our fire everywhere broke down their efforts and inflicted heavy losses. Our aviators took a brilliant part in the battle, turning their machine guns at a low height against enemy concentrations and contributing also to the repulse of counter-attacks."

British Sailors Drowned.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Since the outbreak of war 6,627 officers and men of the British mercantile marine, exclusive of those in the pay of the Admiralty, have lost their lives, according to a statement made in the House of Commons Monday afternoon by Sir Albert Stanley, president of the Board of Trade.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Cure fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—The immense proportions to which the live stock trade of Ontario has attained is becoming more and more borne in upon the men who meet for the transaction of business at the Union Stock Yards, and yesterday's receipts of nearly 5,000 head of cattle at that point was an object lesson for all. In point of numbers the market yesterday probably constituted a record for this season of the year, while the high, $12.75 for a few good loads of extra choice heavy steers, suitable for the export trade, made a new high record for the time being.

The total receipts were 4,624 cattle, 239 calves, 1,484 hogs, and 1,232 sheep and lambs.

Hyphenates Fight for Kaiser.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Aug. 21.—News received here from Munich, Bavaria, is to the effect that a number of German-Americans are fighting with the Bavarians, some as volunteers and others under compulsion, Germany considering her nationals wherever they may be naturalized, as real Germans.

the tactics of the past three years. Wherever the German front-line trenches have been made untenable, or where there is an attack, these new conditions are found. Back of these outposts are great nests, each consisting of two or three craters connected by underground passages that often lead to dugouts. As the entire territory is pitted with holes this is easy of accomplishment, and it may be presumed the Germans figure it will be hard for the Allied observers to pick out the defended shell holes from the thousands of others scattered about.

Where time has allowed, the Germans have made the shell-hole defences with elaborate care. Each nest is heavily protected by barbed wire, and the chambers beneath are reinforced with timbers and concrete. In these the infantry lurk with machine guns and rifles, ready to rush out and begin firing if an attack is launched against them.

The defences within Lens and suburbs are striking examples of the German tendency to depend more and more upon large numbers of semi-isolated garrisons rather than mass their men in trenches, where they would be at the mercy of the British artillery. Lens is a city of concrete, and the ground beneath is honey-combed with tunnels. Almost every building has been destroyed by the Germans, and the ruins have been fortified with machine-gun emplacements.

No "Next Time" for Germany.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 21.—General von Liebert, in a speech at Rathenow, Prussia, is quoted by The Deutsche Tageszeitung as saying:

"We cannot sign a peace before we have the Flanders coast, a colonial empire and maritime bases. Should we not realize this now we must prepare to work for it after the war in view of the next war."

General Liebert's speech was loudly cheered by his hearers, but it was criticized by the German press. Vorwärts declared:

"This may prolong the war until Germany has been so beaten that even our Pan-Germans cannot think of a 'next time.'"

Prince Albert is Ill.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Prince Albert, second son of the King, has been obliged to leave his ship owing to gastric trouble, according to an announcement in the court circular Monday night. A consultation of physicians has been held, as a result of which it was decided that the Prince must submit to a course of treatment. This will prevent him from undertaking any duty afloat for several months.

Prince Albert has suffered from gastric disorders for several years. He was operated on for appendicitis in 1914, and on several occasions has been obliged to go on sick leave.

Revolts Put Down by Troops.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Great revolts have taken place in the leading towns of Finland, according to advices received at Copenhagen through channels opened by the raising of the Russian news embargo on the frontier of Sweden, and wired by the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company. Foodstuffs were seized by the Finnish populace, and the authorities seized whatever supplies remained. Public order is now being restored in Finland by the arrival of fresh troops.

"Beautiful Joe" by a Canadian

LOVE me, love my dog," is a saying one feels, somehow, like reversing in the special case of Marshall Saunders, author of the dog-tale "Beautiful Joe." No other book, except "Black Beauty" of English authorship, has occupied so popular a place in the library of the nursery as this dog book. To read the book is to love the dog, that ugly "Beautiful Joe" who is the hero, and to love "my dog" is to love "me," Marshall Saunders.

By which detour one arrives at the conclusion that Marshall Saunders is greatly beloved by nearly a million children, here and yonder. It is estimated that that is the number of boys and girls who have read the famous story. Originally it was a prize story, and now it is twenty-odd years old and read in two other languages besides the English—Japanese and Swedish.

Miss Saunders, who spends the winter in Toronto, is a daughter of Rev. E. M. Saunders, Doctor of Divinity, late of Halifax. The pen of Dr. Saunders himself is a veteran quill to-day in the world of letters. And Miss Saunders companions her father in fame to the extent of a list of books as long as your arm, and most of them designed for the use of children. The common humanitarian note is caught by a cursory glance at a few of the titles: "My Pets," for one; "Pussy Blackface," another; and "Charles and His Lamb," "Princess Sukey," and "The King of the Park," yet others; while other books from this facile pen are "Tilda Jane," "The House of Armour," "Daisy," "Rose a Charlette," "Deficient Saints," "The Story of the Graveyards," and "For His Country."

The home of the Saunders in Halifax was the sanctuary as well of fur and feathers. The premises boasted a goats' kennel, guinea pigs' houses, dogs' accommodation, kittens' quarters, and an aviary inhabited by some two hundred birds. The last consisted of a basement hostel thirty-two feet by fifteen feet, connected by a wire with the roof, on which a giant cage gave room for spreading. The brotherhood of it included pigeons, cardinals, canaries, a Japanese robin, a purple gallinule, doves, blackbirds, Australian parakeets, other species, and nondescripts who were foundlings, spelled "fondlings."

Miss Saunders, who ran this one herself, is a great exponent of reservations for birds which should exist at the public charges. In her argument for the establishment of such, she declares that birds are state assets, and would soon pay back the cost to the public of safe and happy breeding places. They would give it back not only in song but also in the service they render by feeding on our shade and fruit-tree pests.

It distresses Miss Saunders to see birds and other creatures suffer needless pain. She has fought the traffic in captive wild birds, native and imported, and, happy to tell, has made important headway. In Halifax, one chances on posters, here and there, in stores and public places, which have emanated from the thought of Miss Saunders and which

big black type, or which this is a sample:

"Birds like company. Has your birds companions?"

This practical love of the lower creation on the part of Marshall Saunders extends, not only to her feathered friends but also to all the wild and the dependent on man. She has seen to it that living conditions have improved in various cities for horses, cows, dogs, cats, and pigeons. She is far from being a faddist, however, and believes in killing off cats and sparrows when the same wax too many for the civic good. She can see a beast killed; but tortured, never! She has even promoted as an industry for women the rearing of squabs for their definite purpose—food.

Miss Saunders was trained for a teacher and did teach for a short while in her girlhood in Nova Scotia. She received her schooling in France and Scotland, and, previously, was the pupil of her father. She discovered quickly that she hated teaching, when the poet and scholar, Dr. Rand, late Chancellor of McMaster, advised her to take up writing as a profession. She found the new work immensely to her liking, and—much to her joy—success came very quickly.

In the midst of her busy days with her pen, Miss Saunders has always, nevertheless, reserved time for service to the public along other lines. A list of the clubs to which she belongs will give the best idea of her many interests. The list is as follows: The American Humane Association, The Playgrounds Association of America, Audubon Society of America, Women's Christian Temperance Union, National Child Labor Committee (New York), Women's Council of Canada, Alliance Française, National Health Association, Anti-Tuberculosis League of Canada, Royal Society for the Protection of Birds (London, Eng.), Canadian Women's Press Club, Alpine Club of Canada, Young Women's Christian Association, Peace Society of New York, Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Toronto Humane Society—and two or three others.

Bruin Routs Fishermen.

A fishing party upon which several Nanaimo, B.C., men set out one Sunday for Horne Lake, was rudely interrupted by a big black bear. He strolled out into the middle of the trail and startled two stragglers who were half a mile in the rear of the main party. Although the bear speeded up on his way west, the two men lost no time in starting out towards the east to catch up with their own party.

Blew the Last Post.

To a Toronto boy, Sergt. Bugler Edward George Evans, belongs the honor of being the leader of the buglers who blew the last post to the fallen Canadians in the service held in Westminster Abbey on Dominion Day. The honor is all the more remarkable when it falls to a lad of Sergt. Evans' age, he being only 18. He was notified that he would be required to furnish and train seven of the best buglers obtainable and after training them he led them in the service at Westminster Abbey.

Before the war he belonged to the 48th, and when the war was declared he took up garrison duty at Toronto Island. At the age of sixteen he enlisted in an overseas battalion, which recruited in Toronto, and went with it to Bramshot Camp. He was anxious to go to the front, but was detained on account of his youth. He is at present in Witley Camp train-

ENGLISH WAR TOYS.

War Has Caused Revival of This Industry.

Mr. Ripley Wilson, an American observer in London, has been looking into the toy business of England, as this business has been affected by the war. He says that one "notable feature" is the number of persons who have taken to "making toys in a small way—in their own homes, probably, and with one or two helpers. When they have hit it right, their business has grown. Mr. Wilson gives the following instance:

The visits of the German zeppelins, which brought anti-aircraft guns into prominence, were almost immediately followed by a toy model of the gun, with its protecting shield and fittings complete. The man who developed the toy started in a small shop, but has gradually increased his sales until he now employs fifty or sixty assistants.

All sorts of war toys are naturally in great demand. War talk is what the children hear in their homes, and war toys are what they understand and appreciate. Toy soldiers have long been a stock article, this being one method by which the masculine spirit is nourished and perpetuated; but now there are recreation huts for the soldiers, and little armored motor cars, and "tanks," and aeroplanes, and ambulances, and wooden forts, and even the big guns brought down to the nursery dimensions. The list reads almost like one of the daily bulletins from the front which the war offices send out for the use of the morning papers.

Mr. Wilson says that rocking-horses are not so common as formerly, wood being pretty scarce, but that the odds and ends of wood are much used for smaller wooden toys. Mechanical toys made of metal have almost disappeared, the few still to be found having been brought over from France.

It is stated that in all England only one firm is making mechanical toys now, and those are of a very simple nature; for the toy-maker who wishes to obtain quantities of iron or tin can do so only with the consent of the Ministry of Munitions, and such permission is not easy to obtain.

Dolls are being made in goodly quantities and varieties, and will continue to be made as long as girls are girls, and toy sets of china are popular. But the greatest growth has been in the line of what Mr. Wilson calls "soft toys," such as Teddy bears and woolly dogs, which before the war were procured in large quantities from Germany. In regard to this line Mr. Wilson says:

It has been an imitative work up to the present time; but perhaps such is necessary when an industry first starts, with the independent and creative thought to follow a thorough knowledge of the various methods of manufacture. The Japanese were quick to start manufacturing soft toys, and many Japanese products found their way into this market until the import restrictions went into effect.

Mr. Wilson reports that the toy imports into the United Kingdom in 1913 amounted to $7,069,000, and in 1916 in $2,597,000; and that the exports of British-made toys in 1913 amounted to $4,313,000, and in 1916 to $3,338,000. Thus the toy trade of $11,382,000 in 1913 was reduced to $5,935,000 last year. There is, however, another difference. In 1913 the balance of trade against Great Britain in the toy line was $2,756,000 while the balance in her favor

Food Barons and Investigators

NOTHING has stirred Canadian public opinion like the outbreak of the report that a group of men had been gigantic profits out of the bacon during the past two years. The alleged profiteers deny it have made as much money disclosures stated, but in the time Canadians stand aghast persons figure prominently profiteering disclosures.

Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor in the Borden Cabinet whose department the investigation into the causes of the high living is conducted, was in this position on Oct. 11, 1916 represents the riding of West and was first returned to office in the general election of 1908. He practiced his profession of many years in the City of Toronto.

William Francis O'Connor, cost of living commissioner, who sprang a sensational exposure of alleged excessive profiteering by several well-known packing houses, was born in Halifax, Nova Scotia, in 1871 obtained his early education in public schools of Halifax, and was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Laws from Dalhousie University. He was called to the bar in 1894, and was an unsuccessful candidate for the Nova Scotia Legislature in 1900. He was a member of the board of directors for the city of Halifax from 1915.

Miss Bessie Josephine O'Connor, who was associated with Mr. O'Connor in the investigation into the high cost of living, was a student of the University of Toronto in 1909. Since October, 1915, she has been connected with the labor department as a specialist, and in that capacity taken an active part in the investigation into the high cost of living. Following her graduation she was connected with the university for two years and conducted investigations into the working conditions of women, on behalf of the labor economy department. These years she resided in the University Settlement. In 1915, to obtain her M.A. degree she wrote a thesis on "The White-collar worker," the material for her thesis obtained by personal investigation and observation.

Sir Joseph Flavelle, Bart., associated with the firm of Davies Co., Ltd., mentioned in the charges of profiteering by O'Connor, K.C., cost of living commissioner, is a well-known capitalist. He was created a baronet on June 3 of the present year. He has had a long and successful career, and holds the presidency of the Wm. Davies Co., Ltd. He has held many positions of trust, and in 1916 was appointed chairman of the Imperial War Commission. He was born in London, February 14, 1858, and moved to Lindsay, where he has many years engaged in the business in partnership with

AN ODD COMPLICATION.

Raw Material Question Is Now Under Discussion.

Without, for a moment, entering upon the great discussion of Free Trade versus Protection, it may be said that free trade has, at any rate, the advantage of simplicity. To be able to carry one's goods, and one's person, for instance, to any part of the world with the same unquestioned ease as from Alberta to Saskatchewan, or from Dorset to Devon, would be, surely, to approach the very ideal of simplicity, all consequence, for the moment, being ruled out of consideration. Such a condition would, at any rate, avoid "the complications of the tariff." In no connection, perhaps, are these complications seen more clearly than in a certain phase of the raw-material trade in Canada, underlying a tariff discussion, which took place, recently, at a meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association at Winnipeg. The fiscal arrangements of the Dominion make the provision that, when the Canadian manufacturer imports raw material, he shall, of course, pay the necessary import duty; but, if he is manufacturing for export, he is entitled to a rebate on this duty. He cannot, however, obtain any such rebate from the home producer of raw material, whose prices are, in turn, necessarily governed by the prices induced by a general system of protection. The effect of this policy is to place the home producer at a disadvantage; and it has already helped to create a situation the very reverse of satisfactory.

Some twenty years ago, when the great Slocan mine area was at the height of its popularity, mining was considered a good and safe investment. Capitalists were willing and even eager to finance sound mining enterprises, and Canadian mineral resources were in a fair way to being adequately exploited. Like all booms, however, the mining boom of the '90s was overdone. Mines failed to fulfill expectations; whilst watered stock and bogus companies, combined with the constant wear of advantageously placed foreign competition, did the rest. Mining very distinctly dropped out of favor, until to-day, in spite of the impetus which the war has given to all such industries, the banks still regard mining as savoring far too much of a gamble to come within the purview of sound finance.

The whole question certainly calls for careful consideration. That the mining industry in Canada is sound enough is shown beyond any doubt by the tremendous extent to which it has, lately, attracted foreign capital. In view, therefore, of the enormous mineral wealth of Canada, and the rapid growth of manufacture, which the future quite evidently has in store for the country, it is certain that the fiscal arrangements should not be allowed to militate, as they undoubtedly do at the present time, against the development of its mines. As for a remedy, there is, obviously, more than one. The great need at the moment, however, is to arouse a more general interest in the matter, and to induce a far-seeing re-consideration of a question of the greatest national importance.

Food Barons and Investigators

NOTHING has stirred Canadian public opinion since the outbreak of war like the report that a little of men had been making profits out of the sale of during the past two years. Legged profiteers deny that they made as much money as the news stated, but in the mean-while Canadians stand aghast. Eight a figure prominently in the series disclosures.

T. W. Crothers, Minister of in the Borden Cabinet, under department the investigation the causes of the high cost of is conducted, was sworn into position on Oct. 11, 1911. He went the riding of West Elgin is first returned to office in the election of 1908. He has his profession of law for years in the City of St.

William Francis O'Connor, K.C., living commissioner for Canada sprang a sensation by his report of alleged excessive profit-taking by several well-known Canadian houses, was born in Nova Scotia, in 1873. He received his early education in the schools of Halifax, and later graduated the degree of LL.B. from Dalhousie University and the degree of B.C.L. from the University of King's College. He was called to the bar of Nova Scotia in 1898, and in 1906 a unsuccessful candidate for Nova Scotia Legislature. He was a member of the board of control of the city of Halifax from 1913 to Bessie Josephine McKenna, who was associated with Mr. Crothers in the investigation of food in Canada, was a graduate of the University of Toronto in the year 1909. Since October, 1916, she has been connected with the Federal Department as a special investigator, and in that capacity has taken an active part in the recent investigation into the high cost of living. Following her graduation she was connected with the university for ten years and conducted investigations into the working conditions of women, on behalf of the poverty department. During the years she resided in the "University Settlement." In 1915 in order to obtain her M.A. degree she wrote a thesis on "The Whitewear Industry" material for her story being obtained by personal investigation and observation.

Joseph Flavell, Bart., who is connected with the firm of William Davies Co., Ltd., mentioned in the list of profiteering by W. F. Crothers, K.C., cost of living commissioner, is a well-known Toronto business man. He was created a baronet in 1903 of the present year. He has a long and successful business career, and holds the office of president of the Wm. Davies Co., Ltd. He has held many other positions of trust, and in 1916 was appointed chairman of the imperial war board. He was born in Peterborough, February 14, 1858, and later moved to Lindsay, where he was for years engaged in the dry goods business in partnership with his brother.

THE BRITISH SIDE.

Sydney Brooks Gives Reasons for Secrecy in U-Boat Campaign.

Without minimizing in any degree the frightful seriousness of Germany's submarine warfare, there is a ray of hope and encouragement in the reasons for secrecy on the part of Great Britain concerning just what is being accomplished in stalking these snakes of the sea. Sydney Brooks, the English journalist, gives some of the strategic reasons for silence relative to the success with which the British Admiralty is meeting in bagging this nefarious game. A part of the communication is issued as the following bulletin by the society:

Just as Great Britain never advertises the feats of her armies, so she allows the world to think that the Prussians are having it pretty much their own way with their submarines. As a matter of fact, the German submarines have scored very few legitimate successes—by which I mean successes that conform to the usages of civilized warfare. It must be nearly two years since they sank a British man-of-war of any importance.

As pirates preying upon fishing smacks, trawlers, Atlantic liners, and the merchantmen of all nations, they have added a new and infamous chapter to naval history. Otherwise it is, I believe, the opinion of most naval men that in German hands the submarine has proved disappointingly ineffective.

People, I remember, were thrown into a state of quite unbalanced admiration when the Deutschland appeared in American waters. It was spoken of as one of the most remarkable achievements of the war. Few stopped to remember—even, indeed, if they ever knew—that the war was only a few months old when ten British submarines crossed the Atlantic from Halifax to the British Isles—the first submarines in naval history to make the journey under their own power.

While we publish the number of vessels sunk by Prussian submarines, we say not a word about the U-boats whose careers are brought to a sudden stop. I do not know how many of them we have caught, sunk, or destroyed. It may be 180; it may be 200; it may be 220. They come out and they do not return, and there is no one in Germany, and perhaps not half a dozen people in England, who know what becomes of them.

The reasons for our secrecy must be tolerably obvious to anyone who thinks the matter over. All that the Germans are able to infer from the failure of any given U-boat to return to port is that somehow or other it has been lost. But how or where they cannot tell.

It may have been through some error of structure or design—a thought to send a chill down the spine of every admiralty official. It may have been through a mistake in navigation. It may have been through one or other of the endless and constantly changing devices that British ingenuity has evolved and brought into play against the new piracy. It may too have happened near the German coast or after the U-boat had reached its appointed station, they cannot tell.

They are faced with a blank wall of possibilities that they have no means of verifying. Weeks must often elapse before they can be sure that a submarine which they thought was operating in a certain area had really passed, and that another boat should be dispatched to take its place.

Sometimes, however, the veil of mystery is partially lifted. Sometimes a German U-boat is towed up the Thames, moored to the embankment, and from $75,000 to $100,000 collected for some naval charity by throwing it open to the public. Sometimes if you are dining with a naval officer you will hear wondrous tales of submarines netted, bombed by aeroplanes even when they are well below the surface, hunted and caught by destroyers, induced by one ruse after another to show themselves where they can be got at.

Sometimes, too, in a British port the men of the merchant marine will tell you of Homeric combats that would have warmed the heart of Nelson and Farragut and made Drake and Frobenius gasp and stare.

But these are mere haphazard personal gleanings. No one knows the full extent of the harvest or how it has been gathered in. But we do know enough—or at any rate we think we do—to feel fairly confident that the Germans can attempt nothing and can invent nothing that we cannot find the means of countering; and that confidence has been rather more than justified by all that has happened since February 1.

Bread-Making Contest

At Rural School Fairs in Ontario

More than $2,000 worth of prizes for bread making will be offered at the Rural School Fairs this fall. Among the prizes are five large cabinet phonographs, fifteen Canuck bread mixers, and many attractive books. These splendid prizes will make the contest the most stirring ever held at rural school fairs. Every girl between the ages of 12 and 18 should read all about this fine opportunity, and should begin now to prepare for it. The prizes, under the conditions

He was born in Peterborough, February 14, 1858, and later moved to Lindsay, where he was for years engaged in the dry goods business in partnership with his brother, J. D. Flavell. He removed to Toronto in 1887, where he has since resided. He was formerly proprietor of the Toronto News. He has always been interested in the University of Toronto, and has contributed liberally to its various funds. In 1904 he was endowed a chair in Hebrew literature at the University of Toronto, with a subscription of $25,000. In the same year he was awarded a traveling fellowship in the sum of $750 a year, and he later contributed largely to the fund for the erection of new residences in connection with the university.

John D. Flavell, chairman of the Ontario License Board, vice-president of the Ontario Flour Mills Association, Limited, Lindsay, is a member of the baronet. He settled in Lindsay in 1864, and became manager of the milling interest in 1884. In 1904 he was appointed a member of the grain survey board by the Dominion Government.

Thomas Francis Matthews, secretary of Matthews-Blackwell, Limited, which firm was established in 1868, was born in Lindsay, Ontario, October 9, 1862, and is the son of George and Ann Matthews. He began his business in 1882 and another branch in Ottawa in 1889. On the death of the George Matthews Limited, he was elected vice-president, which position he retained until the company amalgamated with Matthews-Blackwell Co., Limited, and in 1911.

William M. Flavell, president of the Matthews-Blackwell Co., Limited, began his business career as a clerk in 1867 at the age of 14. Later he became a partner in 1884 and in 1904 was elected president of the company.

More than $2,000 worth of prizes for bread making will be offered at the Rural School Fair this fall. Among the prizes are five large cabinet phonographs, fifteen Canuck bread mixers, and many attractive books. These splendid prizes will make the contest the most stirring ever held at rural school fairs. Every girl between the ages of 12 and 18 should read all about this fine opportunity, and should begin now to prepare for it. The prizes, under the conditions explained below, will be awarded for the best loaves baked with the hard wheat flour that is guaranteed for bread

—the flour that you will want to use always, once you have given it a good trial. We want you to know for yourself that it makes splendid big loaves of the lightest, most wholesome bread that good flour can bake. That is why we make it well worth your while to try it, by offering these attractive and costly prizes.

For this contest we have divided the Province into five districts, each with several counties. In each district we will give a large cabinet phonograph, a set of Dickens' Works and three bread mixers. These are called the District prizes and they are to be given in addition to the prizes offered at the local rural school fairs. (See list of districts below.) Be sure to compete at your local rural school fair. If you win first prize there, you will then automatically become a competitor for the phonograph and other district prizes.

The Prizes. remember, are offered for the best loaf of bread baked with Cream of the West Flour. No other flour will do. For local prizes we offer a number of valuable books. By local prizes we mean those given at the fair.

1st Local Prize.—"Girl's Own Annual," a great big beautifully bound, illustrated book with 800 pages of stories and articles about people, art, animals, gardens, sewing, crocheting—everything that particularly interests young girls, older girls and their mothers. This is a wonderful prize that you can treasure for years.

2nd Local Prize.—"Stories of Famous Men and Women," heavily cloth bound with gold titles, many beautiful pictures in colors, entrancing life stories of Florence Nightingale, Grace Darling, Flora MacDonald, Jenny Lind, the late Queen Victoria and others.

3rd Local Prize.—"Britain Overseas," a big handsomely bound book with many colored pictures, interesting stories and descriptions of the countries and the peoples of Britain's world-wide Empire.

4th Local Prize.—"The Queen's Gift Book," a book of stories, pictures and special articles by Britain's best writers; the proceeds from the sale of this book are for the benefit of disabled soldiers in England.

Note.—Unless the entries number six or more only first and second prizes will be awarded. Unless the entries number ten or more no fourth prize will be awarded.

The District Prizes.—The winner of the first prize at each local fair automatically becomes a competitor for the following District prizes. One-half of the first prize loaf will be sent to the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, to compete in the District Contests. (See conditions below.)

1st District Prize.—The "Pathephone" is the name given to the fine big mahogany phonograph we offer as first prize. It will give you endless pleasure and entertainment for a lifetime. It has special reproducer attachments and needles, enabling you to play all kinds of flat disc records of no matter what make. The Pathephone reproduces band music, orchestra music, songs and funny pieces perfectly; with it goes a dozen of the famous Pathe records. Total value, $150.00.

2nd District Prize.—Set of Dickens' Works, 18 splendidly bound volumes with many illustrations. Among the books in the set are "Oliver Twist" and "Old Curiosity Shop." These are two of the most entrancing stories ever written.

3rd, 4th and 5th Prizes.—"Canuck" Bread mixers. This simple, yet well-made, machine takes the hard work out of bread making. Instead of laborious kneading of the old method, you just put in the ingredients, turn the handle and the dough is thoroughly and more evenly mixed.

FIRST PRIZE AT LOCAL RURAL SCHOOL FAIRS

CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

Every girl may compete at the rural school fair in her district, whether or not she attends school, providing that her 12th birthday occurs before November 1st, 1917, or her 19th birthday does not occur before Nov. 1, 1917. One loaf of bread must be submitted baked in pan about 7 x 5 inches and 3 inches deep, and divided into two loaves so that they may be separated at the fair. The loaf must be baked with Cream of the West Flour. One-half will be judged at the fair. The other half of the prize loaf will be sent to Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, to compete in the District Contests. The judging will be done by Miss M. A. Purdy, of the Department of Breadmaking and Flour Testing. The local contest at the fair will be conducted under the same rules as all the other regular contests at your fairs.

The Standard by which bread will be judged will be as follows:

- | | |
|----------------------------|----------|
| 1. Appearance of Loaf..... | 15 marks |
| (a) Color..... | 5 marks |
| (b) Texture of crust..... | 5 marks |
| (c) Shape of loaf..... | 5 marks |
| 2. Texture of Crumb..... | 40 marks |
| (a) Evenness..... | 15 marks |
| (b) Siftiness..... | 20 marks |
| (c) Color..... | 5 marks |
| 3. Flavor of Bread..... | 45 marks |
| (a) Taste..... | 25 marks |
| (b) Odor..... | 20 marks |

Important.—Each loaf must be accompanied by the part of the flour bag containing the face of the Old Miller, and an entry form must be signed by the girl and parents or guardian stating date of birth, P.O. address, and giving name of dealer from whom Cream of the West Flour was purchased. The form will state that the girl actually baked the loaf entered in the competition. The forms will be provided at the time of the fair. The decision of the judges is final. Not more than one entry may be made by each girl and not more than one local prize will be awarded to the same family.

Which District is yours? This list shows you which counties you compete against if you become a competitor for the District prizes:

- District No. 1.—Counties of Glengarry, Stormont, Dundas, Grenville, Leeds, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Carleton, Lanark, Renfrew.
District No. 2.—Counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Peterborough, Northumberland, Victoria, Durham.
District No. 3.—Counties of York, Ontario, Peel, Halton, West-worth, Oxford, Brant, Waterloo.
District No. 4.—Counties of Welland, Haldimand, Norfolk, Elgin, Kent, Essex, Lambton, Middlesex.
District No. 5.—Counties of Bruce, Grey, Dufferin, Simcoe, Districts of Muskoka, Parry Sound, Timiskaming, Algoma, Sudbury, Manitowish.

THE RESULTS of the contests at the fair will be made known in the usual way as in the case of all the other regular contests. The District results will be announced as soon as possible after the conclusion of the Rural School Fairs in the Province.

DO NOT MISS THIS GREAT OPPORTUNITY. Every girl between 12 and 18 years should compete. What a splendid way to stir up increased interest in breadmaking! Get a supply of Cream of the West Flour at your dealers and practise using it as often as possible to increase the chances of winning. If your dealer cannot sell it to you, write to the Campbell Flour Mills Co., Ltd., Toronto, and we will promptly tell you the nearest place to get it.

NO COMPETITIONS IN COUNTIES NAMED BELOW. The competition is open to all parts of the Province where Rural School Fairs are held, except the Districts of Rainy River, Kenora and Thunder Bay. These districts are the only parts of the Province where school fairs are held by the Department of Agriculture in which this competition will not be a feature. There are no district-representatives of the Department of Agriculture in the Counties of Huron, Perth, Wellington, Haliburton, Prescott, Russell or Lincoln, and no rural school fairs are held in these Counties by the Department of Agriculture. There are, however, a few local school fairs held in these seven counties, and we are opening the competition to these fairs. We will announce later the districts in which each of these Counties will be included.

A Car of Proven Quality

THE Ford car has been on the market twelve years, surely long enough to have proven its high quality. There is nothing experimental about it. Every part has stood the test of time and proven its stability with hard service. No other car has ever approached the durability records of the Ford.

No matter what price you pay for a car you cannot get one with a stancher chassis. Government Laboratory tests have shown that the different parts of the Ford car are superior to those in any other car. Ford Vanadium steel has never been equaled in strength.

If you want a car that can plow through deep mud, sand and gravel—that can cross fields, corduroy roads and ford streams—that can climb the steepest hills with ease—that will give the greatest mileage all year round with the least expense and care—then there is only ONE car for you—The Ford.

TO LIVE IS TO BE WET.

Where There is No Water There Can Be No Life as We Know It.

All life is lived in water. Where no water is no life can be. The necessary machinery may have been already made, as in a completely dried seed, but that seed cannot actually live until water reaches it again. To live is to be wet, or, in the phrase of a French student, "Life is an aquatic phenomenon."

When the supply of water is withheld from living things they may survive, but their life is slowed down, as it were. In the completely dried seed life is arrested altogether, yet the creature is not dead. The French call that a case of vie suspendue, or, in our language, suspended animation. After astonishingly long periods such seeds will germinate if they are watered.

The astronomer tells us that our planet is only one of many belonging to innumerable suns, and he wonders whether this little "lukewarm bullet"
of ours, as Robert Louis Stevenson called it, is really unique in bearing a burden of life. There is one path that leads to the answer of his query. If he finds no evidence of water on other worlds he cannot expect to find life
there.—Dr. C. W. Saleeby in Youth's Companion.

Canadian Casualties.

On June 22 there were 7,271 invalided members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force under the care of the Military Hospitals Commission in Canada, according to figures received from the Commission's headquarters in Ottawa. The latest returns from the Old Country show a decrease of 415 between June 1 and June 8. Of the 7,271 in Canada, 5,949 are convalescents; 884 are in sanatoria for tuberculosis, and the remainder are in other institutions, chiefly general hospitals. The Canadians invalided in the United Kingdom on June 8 numbered 22,067. Of these 10,941 were in Canadian hospitals, as against 10,881 on June 1. In the same period the number of Canadians in "British," or non-Canadian hospitals fell from 11,525 to 11,050. The number in sanatoria for tuberculosis, 76, was unchanged.

Rubber Industry in India.

In Southern India a factory at which high-grade rubber is made resembles a dairy, the milk-like appearance of the latex adding to this illusion, as well as the precautions taken to ensure absolute cleanliness. One of two methods of manufacture is generally adopted. If the estate is young and only a few trees are being tapped the rubber is made in the form of biscuits or sheets. The latex is put into shallow round dishes or oblong pans and a certain quantity of acetic acid added to it. This is the coagulating agent most generally used. After standing for some hours the rubber is found floating on the top of the dish in a white spongy clot. This is removed and washed and rolled by hand and through a mangle until clean. The biscuits are placed on racks in a warm room or an artificial dryer and allowed to remain there until dry. The finished biscuits are pale amber-colored and transparent, and for this reason are popular on the market, for their purity and freedom from dirt can be judged by holding them to the light and looking through them.

to two courses, and dinners to three courses, is to be rescinded. As a means of reducing the consumption of meat it has proved a failure.

The managers of the leading hotels and restaurants agree that their customers, having to make a complete meal from the substantial items on the menu, have eaten more meat than they did when they were accustomed to take the edge off their appetites with hors d'oeuvre, soup and fish. It is fully expected that potatoes will be ruled out altogether by the new hotel and restaurant meals order.

Formerly steaks weighing about eight ounces and chops weighing from nine to ten ounces were served, but recently butchers have been instructed to cut them weighing not more than four or five ounces. A plate of meat from the joint is now about the same weight, and this, it is thought, will be found to coincide with the new order.

"If we are allowed to go back to old conditions and serve a dinner of five or six courses, limiting the meat and bread by bulk or weight, it will be found more economical all round," is the view of a hotel manager. Our chefs will have to prepare more fancy dishes, but less food will be eaten than under present restrictions.

The Mysteries of Rain.

It is usually supposed that the downpour of rain that sometimes follows a flash of lightning is due to the coalescence of fine drops on losing their electrical charge, but a Finnish observer concludes that the thunder jars the drops together. Near Vasa a heavy thunderstorm came up from the east late one afternoon, and as the sun was unclouded, a brilliant double rainbow appeared in the east for half an hour, arching from horizon to horizon. At each roll of thunder the rainbows seemed to be much shaken, the wedge being displaced and the colors blurred. This could not be due to the lightning, and it seemed that the same cause might enlarge the raindrops and disturb the rainbow.

OUR OTTAWA LETTER

If the people could vote on straight issues elections would be a simple matter. Its the herrings drawn across the trail that cause the trouble.

The straight issues in the approaching general election are the record of the Borden Government in conducting the Canadian end of the war as a business enterprise for their Tory friends, the army scandals, the Allison fuse contracts, the alliance with food profiteers like Sir Joseph Flavelle, the breakdown of recruiting caused by the Government's indifference and many other sins of omissions and commissions still fresh in the public mind.

The herrings drawn across the trail, are conscription and union government. Union government was suggested by Sir Robert Borden to Sir Wilfrid Laurier after Sir Robert Borden had decided on the future policy of the Union government. Although it would have looked much better to invite Sir Wilfrid Laurier into a union government at the beginning of the war still it is never too late to mend and the Old Chief might have looked with favor on Sir Robert's proposals if a promise had gone with them that the union government would adopt no policy until Sir Wilfrid had joined its counsels. But that was not Sir Robert's plan. Make the policy first and ask Sir Wilfrid to join afterwards—that was the scheme. Sir Wilfrid naturally refused to yield to blandishments which would have killed him in Quebec, swamped the Liberal party, and involved him in a policy in which he had no say.

The Borden Government is still strong for Union Government. It is still dangling portfolios before Liberals in and out of the House of Commons but is having great difficulty tempting any men of mark to risk their careers with a party that will have to run so many chances at the next election. The idea of the Borden Government at present is to wash all its guilty stains away and secure condemnation of past sins by pulling in enough Liberals to make a cake of soap for the immunity bath.

It's no longer a fifty-fifty proposition that the Borden Government has in mind. It's a cabinet three-quarters Conservative and one-quarter Liberal—or let us say one quarter rats because if they join a Borden Cabinet the poor fellows will no longer have a future with the Liberal party.

Many Conservatives are opposed to a Union Government and for two and sufficient reasons. One is that they doubt the sincerity of the alleged Liberals who are behind the movement—men like J. E. Atkinson of the Toronto Star and Sir Clifford Sifton. And the other is that they are convinced that union government is a foolish and dilatory procedure because whatever way the election goes Sir Wilfrid Laurier will come back with a personal following of over one hundred members and with that support at his back could dictate terms to any union Government that Sir Robert Borden or Sir Clifford Sifton, or Mr. Joseph E. Atkinson or anybody else could get together. In short a union government could not live one week after Parliament had assembled save by grace and favor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Union government and conscription are the herrings, as I said before, which designing men on both sides of politics use to divert attention from the real issues. Conscription is better equilibrium. Last summer he was forced to come out in the open. He took the ground then that if Hartley Dewart was a Liberal then he wasn't. He also took the ground that Liberals who supported Hartley Dewart were not Liberals at all, and that in fact nobody was a Liberal who didn't wear the Atkinson label. Whereupon, flying right in the face of Mr. Atkinson, the Liberals got out and elected Hartley Dewart member for South West Toronto by a few thousand majority. It was at this stage of the game that Mr. Atkinson discovered he was a Social Democrat. That's what Mr. Atkinson is right now. He believes in justice to the worker and is worth two million dollars. Mr. Atkinson is in favor of winning the war, unionizing the government and retiring Laurier.

Dr. Michael Clark of Red Deer is under engagement by the Borden Government to preach to-hell-with Laurier in Ontario and the West. Dr. Clark has just been given the bounce by his Liberal supporters in Red Deer who are nominating another candidate who will have a kinder feeling toward the Old Chief.

Red Michael is the trumpet and Arthur Alfalfa Hawkes is the little tin bugle of the movement in Ontario. Arthur is a chartered crusader. He is always in favor of any noble thought that has money in it. He dwells on the heights, skipping from peak to peak like the mountain goat. He regards himself as the Member for Canada. He comes from England originally—a long time ago but not too long ago to use it for advertising purposes—and his bosom is stuffed with messages to us benighted Canadians. Up to 1911 Arthur was a Liberal. Then he turned on his friends and inflamed the British-born as far as he could against cheaper food from the United States than we were getting from Sir Joseph Flavelle and his friends.

A year or two later the Conservative party decided that Arthur wasn't much good to them after the election was over and let him go. For a while after that he was Canada-First, ran a by-election on it, got twenty-seven votes and gave it up as a bad job. More recently, Arthur was a Bonne Entente—that is to say he was in favor as long as the pay held out, of a better understanding with Quebec. Now that he is a win-the-war man he is in favor of fighting the Plains of Abraham all over again to put Quebec in her place.

Such are some of the men and some of the motives behind the movement which takes win-the-war and union government as disguises but whose real object is to bedevil Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal party. The arch-plotter, the Big Man Behind, beside whom Mr. J. E. Atkinson is only a tin Machiavelli, is Sir Clifford Sifton. Sir Clifford's presence behind any movement is always a sign that some big and selfish interest is pulling the strings. Sir Clifford also has a personal motive. He hates Sir Wilfrid Laurier up and down and clear across. He has hated him for twelve years—ever since he had to get out of the cabinet to dodge a 'salty' story that the Opposition of the day had on him short a union government could not live one week after Parliament had assembled save by grace and favor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Union government and conscription are the herrings, as I said before, which designing men on both sides of politics use to divert attention from the real issues. Conscription is better known as win-the-war. There are some honest English-conscriptionist Liberals in and out of the House of Commons—twenty-six of them you will remember voted against Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the question—but the win-the-war crowd in Toronto is under suspicion of seeking other objects than winning the war. What they want to win is a toe-hold in federal politics. I name no names but I look straight at him. Of course everybody wants to win the war but some of us differ as to ways and means. What we don't want to win is a lot of Pharisees who couldn't get into public life any other way.

The win-the-war group has been so busy between Toronto and Ottawa—coming up by one train and going back by the next—bobbing up at early morn in Ottawa and disappearing at dewy eve somewhere in Toronto—that only the other day Parliament passed an Act for the protection of migratory birds which was intended to give these stealthy travellers a chance. One end of the win-the-war government in Ontario is in the hands of John Godfrey who is probably sincere. The other end of it is in the hands of Mr. J. E. Atkinson of the Toronto Star who is probably not. Both ends of the movement are under control of Sir Clifford Sifton who also has his finger on the Western movement. All the movements jump when Sir Clifford sneezes.

Mr. J. E. Atkinson has organized a little rebellion among the Ontario editors who take the boiler plate service of the Toronto Star and they have issued a manifesto to the effect that they are in favor of a union government with Sir Wilfrid Laurier out of it after he has won the election for them by carrying Quebec. The manifesto does not say this in so many words but that's what it means when you read between the lines. These brave fellows are aware that they can't win an election if they get very far from the Old Man. So they won't dump him—at least out loud or just now.

Mr. Atkinson has found it good for the circulation of his newspapers to pose as a Liberal in theory and a Tory in practice, the editorial page always being in a condition of stable

POWER OF THE PRESS.

Must Help to Bind the British Empire More Closely Together.

The views expressed by the Min- isters from the various British Dom- inions on the duties and responsi- bilities of the press, at a luncheon given in their honor in London, by the Empire Press Union during the War Conference may not have con- tained any new or striking state- ments. They were, however, note- worthy for the importance the speakers manifestly attached to the part which the press is capable of playing in bringing about the real- ization of those ideals at which the Empire is aiming. This was parti- cularly noticeable in the speech made by one of the Indian delegates, Sir James Meston, Lieutenant-Gov- ernor of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh. He earnestly hoped, he said, that, when peace had been re-established, measures would be adopted to enlighten the other parts of the Empire as to what India was really like, and what she was cap- able of in the future. He would like to see a joint delegation consisting of British statesmen, representatives of all the Dominions, and delegates from the Empire Press Union, visit- ing India for this purpose.

The same desire to co-operate with the press, as fully as possible, was noticeable in the other speeches, as was also a welcome degree of under- standing of just what was needed. Thus, Sir Robert Borden declared that, speaking for Canada, he could say that she was ready to do her utmost, by means of improved trans- port and intercommunication, to draw closer together the bonds of union between the Mother Country and the Dominions, and between the Dominions themselves; whilst Mr. Massey, speaking for New Zealand, dwelt upon the need for better communication between the Mother Country and the Dominions in the transportation, mail, and cable service.

Perhaps the most important points brought out were those which dealt with the need for a fuller intercom- munion between the Dominions themselves, and for a greater effort on the part of the Dominions to under- stand and appreciate India. India has deserved well of the Empire. She has given freely of all she had in the present struggle, and that with- out even a hint at terms. Indians have fought side by side with men from Australia, Canada, and South Africa, and it is impossible that this comradeship has not done something to lessen the prejudices which these Dominions entertained for the In- dian before the war. It may not be possible for such improved views to take the form of an immediate change in policy in regard to such matters as immigration; but it prob- ably will secure, at once, that more considerate treatment for Indians to which India, not unnaturally, at- taches great importance. As Sir James Meston fully recognized, in bringing about this very desirable change of heart, the press can do much by being at pains, as he put it, "to enlighten the other parts of the Empire as to what India is really like."

An Historic Dinner.

Had the times been less serious, the jubilee of Canadian Confederation would have been marked by the great celebrations in London, England. The Dominion Day dinner used to be one of the most interesting functions of the early London season. It was first held in 1888, when there was a galaxy of Canadian legal talent in England in connection with the famous appeal of the Privy Council over the extent of the radius of Ontario Province. The idea occurred to Donald MacMaster, that Canada's coming of age should be observed with a dinner. Those present included McLeod Stewart, Mayor of Ottawa, in the chair; Lord Knutsford, Lord Lansdowne, Sir Charles Tupper, Hon. Oliver Mowat, Sir Adam Wilson, Hon. W. E. Sandford, A. Staveley Hill, Dalton McCarthy, George Attwood, Peter Redpath, J. C. Colmer, and A. Dickson Patterson. In the course of his speech, Dalton McCarthy said he would claim that the colony from which he came was no longer to be classed merely as a colony, but declared that it was growing into a great nation. They desired to be admitted to a fair share of the responsibilities of the Empire. Lord Knutsford, the Colonial Secretary, replied that with reference to Imperial Federation, any proposals must come from the Dominions themselves.

Chinese Horn Lanterns.

The shops of the lantern venders in the Chinese cities are usually very gay and attractive. All varieties of lanterns are to be seen—the large silken ones three and four feet high, gorgeously painted with variegated colors, embroidered in gold and silver or decorated with deep fringe of the same material, and common small horn and paper lanterns, used by the coolies. The mode of making horn lanterns is very ingenious; the horns are cut into remarkably thin slices which, by means of heat and pressure, are joined together and formed into various shapes—round, square, hexagon, octagon, and some shaped to resemble an hour-glass. It is usual for servants after sunset to carry before their masters large lanterns made either of horn or highly-varnished paper, with the name, title, and dignities painted in large letters thereon. At the Feast of Lanterns, which takes place in the early part of the Chinese New Year, these lantern-shop proprietors reap a rich harvest, as it is customary for parents to make presents of lanterns to their children, brother to sister, friend to friend, inferior to superior, and vice versa.

More Rubber Used.

The world's production of rubber has doubled in eight years. In 1915 the production was 146,000 tons, against 108,500 in 1914 and 115,000 in 1913. This is in spite of the fact that Germany and Austria were able to import none at all in 1915.

Our National Fathers.

The Department of Education in British Columbia is arranging to send through the Free Text Book branch a picture of the Fathers of Confederation reproduced from the original painting, which unfortunately was destroyed when the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa were burned, to all the schools of the province. Underneath the picture will be the key by which to identify the various figures in the group.

Catlin dwelt in a detached room back of the Empire, together with one of the other professional gamblers. We lounged around the corner of the Empire building. The door of the cabin was shut. Outside we hung back, hesitating and a little uncertain. None of us was by nature or training a man of violence, and we experienced the reluctance of men about to plunge into cold water. Nobody was more than pardonably afraid, and of course we had every intention of seeing the affair through. Then suddenly in the actual face of the thing itself my excitement drained from me like a tide receding. My nerves steadied, my trembling stilled. Never had I felt more cool in my life. Drawing my revolver, I pushed open the door and entered the building.

Catlin was in the act of washing his face, and him I instantly covered with my weapon. His companion was still

"Your sentence is death," I told him.

abed. On my entrance the latter had instinctively raised on his elbow, but immediately dropped back as he saw the figures of my companions darkening the door.

"Well, gentlemen?" demanded Catlin.

"You must come with us," I replied. He showed no concern, but when mistaken. Instantly at the words so valiantly uttered the spirit of cohesion had been born, the desperadoes checked in surprise. We had friends. How many or how strong no one could guess, but they were there, and in case of a battle they would fight.

On our side the line was a dead, grim silence. We stood, our weapons ready, rigidly at attention. Occasionally one or the other of us muttered a warning against those who showed symptoms of desiring to interfere.

In the meantime three of our number had been proceeding methodically with the construction of a gallows. This was made by thrusting five small pine butts, about forty feet long, over a cross beam in the gable of the cabin and against the roof inside. Large dry goods boxes were placed beneath for the trap.

About this time Danny Randall, who had been superintending the construction, touched me on the shoulder.

"Fall back," he said quietly. "Now," he instructed several of us after we had obeyed this command, "I want you to bring out the prisoners and hold them in plain view. In case of rescue or attempted escape shoot them instantly. Don't hesitate."

"I should think they would be safer inside the cabin," I suggested.

"Sure," agreed Danny, "but I want them here for the moral effect."

We entered the cabin. The five prisoners were standing or sitting. Scarface Charley was alternately blaspheming violently, upbraiding his companions, cursing his own luck and uttering frightful threats against everybody who had anything to do with this. Crawford was watching him contemptuously and every once in awhile advising him to "shut up!" Jules was alternately cursing and crying. Morton sat at one side quite calm and very alert. Catlin stared at the floor.

With revolvers drawn we marched them outside. A wild yell greeted their appearance. The cries were now mixed in sentiment. A hundred voices raised in opposition were cried down by twice as many more. "Hang 'em!" cried some. "No, no; banish them!" cried others. "Don't hang them!" and blood curdling threats. A single shot would have brought on a pitched battle. Somehow eventually the tumult died down. Then Morton, who had been awaiting his chance, spoke up in a strong voice.

"I call on you in the name of the law to arrest and disperse these lawbreakers."

"Where is Tom Cleveland?" spoke up a voice.

"Men," Danny's voice rang out, clear and menacing, "do your duty!"

and that I shall meet you all in the lowest pit of hell!" he snarled.

Morton kept a stubborn and rather dignified silence. Catlin alternately pleaded and wept. Jules answered Danny's question:

"Sure thing! Pull off my boots for me. I don't want it to get back to my old mother that I died with my boots on."

In silence and gravely this ridiculous request was complied with. The crowd, very attentive, heaved and stirred. The desperadoes, shouldering their way here and there, were finding each other out, were gathering in little groups.

"They'll try a rescue!" whispered the man next to me.

"Men," Danny's voice rang out, clear and menacing, "do your duty!"

At the words across the silence the click of gunlocks was heard as the vigilantes leveled their weapons at the crowd. From my position near the condemned men I could see the shifting components of the mob freeze to immobility before the menace of those barrels. At the same instant the man who had been appointed executioner jerked the box from beneath Catlin's feet.

"There goes one!" muttered Charley.

"I hope forked lightning will strike every strangling!" yelled Crawford. His speech was abruptly cut short as the box spun from under his feet.

"Kick away, old fellow!" said Scarface Charley. "Me next! I'll be with you in a minute! Every man for his principles! Hurrah for crime! Let her rip!" And without waiting for the executioner he himself kicked the support away.

Morton died without a sign. Catlin at the last suddenly calmed and met his fate bravely.

Before the lull resulting from the execution and the threat of the presented weapons could break Danny Randall spoke up.

"I was just thinking of our blameless organization," he chuckled. "I suppose it's true that might of the same lot will ever get behind Italian Bar," agreed Danny, "but a good thing for whatever comes they may hit next year."

Johnny and Old elected to take wages in dust. Cal decided on a der against the San Francisco. Then we wandered down to where we could overlook the bar itself.

The entire bed of the river was from rim to rim with a rolling flood. The bars, sand spits, banks had all disappeared. Trees bobbed and sank and raised their arms or tangled roots as they were swept along by the current caught back by the eddies, and beneath the roar of the waters were the dull rumbling and crunching boulders rolled beneath the flow. A crowd of men was watching with curiosity. We learned that all the dikes and most of the tools had been lost and heard rumors of camps located too low having swept away.

That evening we held a very serious discussion of our prospects and Yank announced himself as fit to el and ready to do so, provided he have a horse. The express mess were out of a job. I had lost my tools and was heartily tired of washing, even had conditions that I had to continue. Beside which I was all feeling quite rich and prosperous. We had not made enormous money. Yank had the least, owing the fact that he had been robbing his Porcupine river product and been compelled for nearly three years to lie idle, but even he could count a thousand dollars or so sent out by Hangman's Gulch. I had the means my digging had paid me better than Johnny's express riding. But of my share belonged of right to the bot Ward.

Having once made up our minds, we could not go too soon.

instinctively raised on his elbow, but immediately dropped back as he saw the figures of my companions darkening the door.

"Well, gentlemen?" demanded Catlin.

"You must come with us," I replied. He showed no concern, but wiped carefully his face and hands.

"What am I wanted for?" he inquired.

"For being a road agent, a thief and an accessory to robberies and murders," I replied.

"I am innocent of all, as innocent as you are."

"There is no possibility of a mistake."

"What will you do with me?"

"Your sentence is death," I told him. For a single instant his dark face lit up.

"You think so?" he flashed.

"Hurry!" urged one of my companions.

With one man on either side and another behind, revolvers drawn, we marched our prisoner in double quick time past the rear of the stores and saloons to the agreed rendezvous. There we found Danny Randall and his committee with Morton. Within the next few moments, in rapid succession, appeared the others with Scarface Charley, Crawford and Jules.

The camp was already buzzing with excitement. Men poured out from the buildings into the streets like disturbed ants. Danny thrust his prisoners into the interior of the cabin and drew us up in two lines outside. He impressed on us that we must keep the military formation and that we were to allow no one to approach. Across the road about twenty yards away he himself laid a rope.

"That's the dead line," he announced. "Now, you keep the other side!"

In no time a mob of 500 men had gathered. They surged restlessly to and fro. The flash of weapons was everywhere to be seen. Cries rent the air—demands, threats, oaths and insults so numerous and so virulent that I must confess my heart failed me. At any instant I expected the mob to open fire. They could have swept us away with a single volley. To my excited imagination every man of that multitude looked a ruffian. We seemed alone against the community. I could not understand why they did not rush us and have it over with. Yet they hesitated. The fact of the matter is that the desperadoes had no cohesion, no leaders, and they knew what none of us knew—namely, that a good many of that crowd must be on our side. The roar and turmoil and heat of discussion, argument and threat rose and fell. In one of the lulls an Irish voice yelled:

"Hang them!"

The words were greeted by a sullen assenting roar. Five hundred hands, each armed, were held aloft. This unanimity produced an instant silence.

"Hang who?" a truculent voice expressed the universal uncertainty.

"Hang the road agents!" yelled back the little Irishman defiantly.

"Bully for you, Irish! That took nerve!" muttered Johnny at my elbow.

Fifty threats were hurled at the bold speaker, and the click of gunlocks preceded a surge in his direction. Then from the mob went up a sullen, formidable muttering of warning. No individual voice could be distinguished, but the total effect of dead resistance and determination could not be died down. Then Morton, who had been awaiting his chance, spoke up in a strong voice.

"I call on you in the name of the law to arrest and disperse these law-breakers."

"Where is Tom Cleveland?" spoke up a voice.

The appeal, which might otherwise have had its effect, was lost in the cries, accusations and counter accusations that arose like a babel. Morton made no further attempt. He better than any one realized, I think, the numerical superiority against him.

The preparations were at length completed. Danny Randall motioned us to lead forward the prisoners. Catlin struggled desperately, but the others walked steadily enough to take their places on the dry goods boxes.

"For God's sake, gentlemen," appealed Crawford in a loud tone of voice, "give me time to write home!"

"Ask him how much time he gave Tom Cleveland!" shouted a voice.

"If I'd only had a show," retorted Crawford, "if I'd known what you were after, you'd have had a gay time taking me."

There was some little delay in adjusting the cords.

"If you're going to hang me get at it!" said Jules, with an oath. "If not, I want you to tie a bandage on my finger. It's bleeding."

"Give me your coat, Catlin," said Crawford. "You never gave me anything yet. Now's your chance."

Danny Randall broke in on this exchange.

"You are about to be executed," said he soberly. "If you have any dying requests to make this is your last opportunity. They will be carefully heeded."

Scarface Charley broke in with a rough laugh.

"How do I look, boys, with a halter around my neck?" he cried.

This grim effort was received in silence.

"Your time is very short," Danny reminded him.

"Well, then," said the desperado, "I want one more drink of whisky before I die."

CHAPTER XXVI.

Community No Longer Afraid.

A SPECIES of uneasy consternation rippled over the crowd. Men glanced meaningfully at each other, murmuring together. Some of the countenances expressed loathing, but more exhibited a surprised contempt. For a confused moment no one seemed to know quite what to do or what answer to make to so bestial a dying request. Danny broke the silence incisively.

"I promised them their requests would be carefully heeded," he said. "Give him the liquor."

Somebody passed up a flask. Charley raised it as high as he could, but was prevented by the rope from getting it quite to his lips.

"You —," he yelled at the man who held the rope, "slack off that rope and let a man take a parting drink, can't you?"

Amid a dead silence the rope was slackened away. Charley took a long drink, then hurled the half emptied flask far out into the crowd.

To a question Crawford shook his head.

"I hope God Almighty will strike every one of you with forked lightning port away.

Morton died without a sign. Catlin at the last suddenly calmed and met his fate bravely.

Before the lull resulting from the execution and the threat of the presented weapons could break Danny Randall spoke up.

"Gentlemen," he called clearly, "the roster of the vigilantes is open! Such of you as please to join the association for the preservation of decency, law and order in this camp can now do so!"

The guard lowered their arms and moved to one side. The crowd swept forward. In the cabin the applicants were admitted a few at a time. Before noon we had 400 men on our rolls. Some of the bolder roughs ventured a few threats, but were speedily overawed. The community had found itself and was no longer afraid.

No sooner had this radical cleanup of the body politic been consummated than the rains began. That means little to any but a Californian. To him it means everything. We were quite new to the climate and the conditions, so that the whole thing was a great surprise.

For four days it rained steadily.

The morning of the fifth day broke dazzlingly clear. The sky looked burnished as a blue jewel; the sunlight glittered like shimmering metal; distant objects stood out plain cut, without atmosphere. For the first time we felt encouraged to dare that awful mud and so slopped over to town.

We found the place fairly drowned out. No one in his first year thought of building for the weather. Barnes' hotel, the Empire and the Bella Union had come through without shipping a drop, for they had been erected by men with experience in the California climate, but almost everybody else had been leaked upon a plenty. And the deep dust of the travel worn overland road had turned into a morass beyond belief or description.

Our first intimation of a definite seasonal change came from our old friend Danny Randall, who hailed us at once when he saw us picking our way gingerly along the edge of the street. In answer to his summons we entered the Bella Union.

"I hope you boys weren't quite drowned out," he greeted us. "You don't look particularly careworn."

We exchanged the appropriate comments; then Danny came at once to business.

"Now I'm going to pay off you three boys," he told the express messengers, "and I want to know what you want. I can give you the dust, or I can give you an order on a San Francisco firm, just as you choose."

"Express business busted?" asked Johnny.

"It's quit for the season," Danny Randall told him, "like everything else. In two weeks at most there won't be a score of men left in Italian Bar." He observed our astonished incredulity, smiled and continued: "You boys came from the east, where it rains and gets over it. But out here it doesn't get over it. Have you been down to look at the river? No? Well, you'd better take a look. There'll be no more bar mining done there for awhile. And what's a mining camp without mining? Go talk to the men of '48. They'll tell you. The season is over, boys, until next spring, and you may just as well make up your minds to hike out now as later. What are you laughing at?" he asked Johnny.

a thousand dollars or so sent on Hangman's Gulch. I had the money digging had paid me better had Johnny's express riding. But of my share belonged of right bot Ward.

Having once made up our minds, we could not go too soon. A vision seized us. In two days high winds that immediately up from the west had dried the face moisture. We said goodbye our friends—Danny Randall, Dickin, Barnes and the few miners whom we had become intimate. It was even then himself proposed to return to Sonoma as soon as road should be open to wagon. Rankin intended to accompany, ostensibly because he saw a professional opening at Sonoma, in because in his shy, hidden fast loved Danny.

We made our way out of the without adventure worth noting. The road was muddy and a good wash—in fact, we had occasion to do considerable maneuvering a way at all around the land from the hills above.

One afternoon we turned off trail known to Old and rode miles to where the Pine family made its farm. We found the old man and his tall sons inhabiting a two roomed cabin situated on a hill. They had already surrounded with a fence made of split pickets and were working away with tireless energy of the born agriculturist. Their horses were turned into plowing, and somewhere or other they had put a cock and a dozen hens.

For a brief period Yank and I envied the lot of these pioneers. They had a settled stake in the count.

"I wish I could go in for this thing," said Yank.

"Why don't you?" urged old Pine.

"There's a flat just above."

"How did you get hold of this?" I inquired curiously.

"Just took it."

"Doesn't it belong to anybody?"

"It's part of one of these big ranchos," said Pine impatiently. "I made a good try to git to the top of it. One fellow says he owns it; then comes another that he owns it and won't sell, and They don't nohow use this country a while. I got tired of mo' with them, and I came out here squatted. If I owe anybody as they got to show me who it is. I believe none of them knows the who it really belongs to."

"I'd hate to put a lot of work place and then have to move out!" I doubtfully.

"I'd like to see anybody move out!" observed old man Pine gr

Yank and Old elected to take their dust. Cal decided on the order of the San Francisco firm. He wandered down to where we were looking the bar itself.

The attire bed of the river was filled in to rim with a rolling brown. The bars, sand spits, gravel had all disappeared. Whole banded and sank and raised skeletons or tangled roots as they swept along by the current or back by the eddies, and under the roar of the waters we heard a rumbling and crunching of gravel rolled beneath the flood. A lot of men was watching in idle. We learned that all the craft most of the tools had been in heard rumors of cabins or located too low having been way.

Evening we held a very serious one of our prospects and plans. I announced himself as fit to travel to do so, provided he could make. The express messengers it of a job. I had lost all my money was heartily tired of gold, even had conditions permit to continue. Beside which we were feeling quite rich and prosperous had not made enormous fortune we had confidently anticipated when we left New York, but we possessed of good sums of money. Yank had the least, owing to the fact that he had been robbed of cupine river product and had been expelled for nearly three months, but even he could count on his dollars or so sent out from the gulch. I had the most, for I had paid me better than any's express riding. But much more belonged of right to Talbot. I once made up our minds to go but could not go too soon. A re-meeting warm floods of golden sunshine. Through the still air we heard plainly the beat of an ax and the low, drowsy clucking of hens. A peaceful and grateful feeling of settled permanence, to which the restless temporary life of mining camps had long left us strangers, filled us with the vague stirrings of envy.

The feeling soon passed. We marched cheerfully away, our hopes busy with what we would do when we reached New York. Johnny and I had accumulated very fair sums of money in spite of our loss at the hands of the robbers, what with the takings at Hangman's Gulch, what was left from the robbery and Italian Bar. These sums did not constitute an enormous fortune, to be sure. There was nothing spectacular in our winnings, but they totaled about five times the amount we could have made at home, and they represented a very fair little stake with which to start life. We were young.

We found Sacramento under water. A sluggish, brown flood filled the town and spread far abroad over the flat countryside. Men were living in second stories of such buildings as possessed second stories and on the roofs of others. They were paddling about in all sorts of improvised boats and rafts. I saw one man keeping a precarious equilibrium in a baker's trough, and another sprawled out face down on an India rubber bed, paddling over-side with his hands.

We viewed these things from the thwarts of a boat which we hired for $10. Our horses we had left outside of town on the highlands. Everywhere we passed men and shouted to them a cheery greeting. Everybody seemed optimistic and inclined to believe that the flood would soon go down.

"Anyway, she's killed the rats," one man shouted in answer to our call.

We grinned an appreciation of what we thought merely a facetious reply. Rats had not yet penetrated to the mines, so we did not know anything about them. Next day in San Francisco we began to apprehend the man's remark.

Thus we rowed cheerfully about, having a good time at the other fellow's expense. Suddenly Johnny, who was steering, dropped his paddle with an exclamation. Yank and I turned to see what had so struck him. Beyond the trees that marked where the bank of the river ought to be we saw two tall smokestacks belching forth a great volume of black smoke.

"A steamer!" cried Yank. "Yes, and a good big one!" I added. We lay to our oars and soon drew alongside. She proved to be a side wheeler of fully 700 tons, exactly like the craft we had often seen plying the Hudson.

sensed a little of the desperate horror with which he had torn and struggled to free himself from that dreadful burden.

"I thought I'd burst!" said he. And then he had torn off the belt and had shot to the surface.

"It's down there," he said more calmly, "every confounded yellow grain of it." He laughed a little. "Broke!" said he. "No New York in mine!"

The crowd murmured sympathetically.

"Gol darn it, boys, it's rotten hard luck!" cried a big miner, with some heat. "Who'll chip in?"

At the words Johnny recovered himself, and his customary ease of manner returned.

"Much obliged, boys," said he, "but I've still got my health. I don't need charity. Guess I've been doing the baby act. But I was clean mad at that rotten old rail. Anyway," he laughed, "there need nobody say in the future that there's no gold in the lower Sacramento. There is. I put it there myself."

We drew up to San Francisco early in the afternoon, and we were, to put it mildly, thoroughly astonished at the change in the place. To begin with, we now landed at a long wharf projecting from the foot of Sacramento

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Johnny Buys a Drink.

THE place was full of new buildings, some of them quite elaborate two story structures of brick, and elevated plank sidewalks had taken the place of the old makeshifts. Although the Plaza was still the center of town, the streets immediately off it had gained considerable dignity and importance. There were many clothing stores and a number of new saloons and gambling houses. As we were picking our way along we ran into an old acquaintance in the person of the captain of the Panama. He recognized us at once, and we drew up for a chat. After we had exchanged first news Johnny asked him if he knew of a place where a fair price could be raised on the diamond.

"Why, the jewelry store is your ticket, of course," replied the captain.

"So there's a jewelry store, too?" cried Johnny.

"And a good one," supplemented the captain. "Come along. I'll take you to it."

It was a good one and carried a large stock of rings, chains, pins, clocks, watches and speaking trumpets. The latter two items were the San Francisco Again.

upturned earth, its scattered

"Yes, and a good big one!" I added.

We lay to our oars and soon drew alongside. She proved to be a side wheeler of fully 700 tons, exactly like the craft we had often seen plying the Hudson.

Along toward midnight as I was leaning on the rail forward watching the effect of the moon on the water and the shower of sparks from the twin stacks against the sky I was suddenly startled by the cry of "man overboard" and a rush toward the stern. I followed as quickly as I was able. The paddle wheels had been instantly reversed, and a half dozen sailors were busily lowering a boat. A crowd of men, alarmed by the trembling of the vessel as her way was checked, poured out from the cabins.
The fact that I was already on deck gave me an advantageous post, so that I found myself near the stern rail.

"He was leaning against the rail,"
one was explaining excitedly, "and it give way, and in he went. He never came up!"

Everybody was watching eagerly the moonlit expanse of the river.

"I guess he's a goner," said a man
after a few moments. "He ain't in sight nowhere."

"There he is!" cried a half dozen voices all at once.

A head shot into sight a few hundred yards astern, blowing the silvered water aside. The small boat, which was now afloat, immediately headed in his direction, and a moment later he was hauled aboard amid frantic cheers.
The dripping victim of the accident
clambered to the deck.

It was Johnny!

He was beside himself with excitement, spluttering with rage and uttering frantic threats against something or somebody. His eyes were wild, and he fairly frothed at the mouth. I seized him by the arm. He stared at me, then became coherent, though he still spluttered. Johnny was habitually so quietly reserved as far as emotions go that his present excitement was at first utterly incomprehensible.

It seemed that he had been leaning

light, when suddenly it had given way

beneath his weight, and he had fallen into the river.

"They had no business to have so weak a rail!" he cried bitterly.

"Well, you're here, all right," I said
soothingly. "There's no great harm done."

"Oh, isn't there?" he snarled.

Then we learned how the weight of the gold around his waist had carried him down like a plummet, and we lower Sacramento. There is. I put it there myself."

We drew up to San Francisco early in the afternoon, and we were, to put it mildly, thoroughly astonished at the change in the place. To begin with,
we now landed at a long wharf projecting from the foot of Sacramento street instead of by lighter. This wharf was crowded by a miscellaneous mob, collected apparently with no other purpose than to view our arrival.
Among them we saw many specialized types that had been lacking to the old city a few months ago—sharp, keen, businesslike clerks whom one could not imagine at the rough work of the mines; loafers whom one could not imagine at any work at all; dissolute,
hard faced characters without the bold freedom of the road agents; young green looking chaps who evidently had much to learn and who were exceedingly likely to pay their little fortunes, if not their lives, in the learning. On a hoghead at one side a street preacher was declaiming.

Johnny had by now quite recovered his spirits. I think he was helped greatly by the discovery that he still possessed his celebrated diamond.

"Not broke yet!" said he triumphantly.
"You see I was a wise boy after all! Wish I had two of them!"

We disembarked, fought our way to one side and discussed our plans.

"Hock the diamond first," said Johnny, who resolutely refused to borrow from me: "then hair cut, shave, bath,
buy some more clothes, grub, drink and hunt up Talbot and see what he's done with the dust we sent down from Hangman's."

That program seemed good. We stroled toward shore, with full intention of putting it into immediate execution. "Immediate" proved to be a relative term. There was too much to see.

At the land end of the wharf we ran into the most extraordinary collection
of vehicles apparently in an inextricable tangle, that was further complicated by the fact that most of the horses were only half broken. They kicked and reared; their drivers lashed and swore; the wagons clasped together. There seemed no possible way out of the mess, and yet somehow the wagons seemed to get loaded and to draw out into the clear. Occasionally the drivers were inclined to abandon their craft and do battle with the loaded ends of their whips, but always a peacemaker descended upon them in the person of a large voluble individual, in whom I recognized my former friend and employer, John McGlynn.
Evidently John had no longer a monopoly of the teaming business, but as evidently what he said went with this wild bunch.

Most of the wagons were loading goods brought from the interiors of storehouses alongside the approach to the wharf. In these storehouses we recognized the hulls of ships, but so shored up, dismantled and cut into by doors and stories that of their original appearance only their general shapes remained. There was a great number of these storehouses along the shore,
some of them being quite built about by piles and platforms, while two were actually inland several hundred feet.
I read the name Nantic on the stern of one of them and found it to have acquired in the landward side a square false front. It was at that time used at a hotel.

"Looks as if they'd taken hold of Talbot's idea hard," observed Yank.

"And a good one," supplemented the captain. "Come along. I'll take you to it."

It was a good one and carried a large stock of rings, chains, pins, clocks, watches and speaking trumpets. The latter two items were the most prominent, for there were hundreds of watches and apparently thousands of speaking trumpets. They stood in rows on the shelves and depended in ranks from hooks and nails.
Most of them were of silver or of silver gilt, and they were plain, chased,
engraved, hammered or repoussé, with always an ample space for inscription. After Johnny had conclu-ed a satisfactory arrangement for his diamond I remarked on the preponderance of speaking trumpets. The man grinned rather maliciously at our captain.

THE FUTURE OF VANCOUVER.

Splendid Harbor May Be Nationalized in the Near Future.

However the much-discussed question of the administration of the port of Vancouver is finally settled, there can be no doubt that the matter is an important and, to a certain extent, an urgent one. There is a very widespread and well-founded conviction abroad that the coming of peace will witness very great developments in trade in the Far East, and nowhere will such developments be felt more certainly than in the Far West;
whilst nowhere in the Far West are they likely to be felt more certainly than in Vancouver. Vancouver is already a great port, but, with its eighty miles of water front and forty miles of anchorage, it is clearly destined to be a much greater one.

For some time past, the wisdom of the policy adopted by the harbor commissioners has been seriously questioned, especially in regard to the tax of three cents per net register ton on the shipping that enters the port. It is contended that this tax, which is not levied in Montreal, for instance, has a tendency to keep shipping away from Vancouver, and that if the port were placed under national control, and the tonnage tax abolished, the advantage to the country, generally, would be very great.

It was for this purpose, of course,
that the delegation of the Vancouver
Board of Trade visited Ottawa, recently. The delegation has not yet made its report, but it is almost common knowledge that it will be very much in favor of the nationalization of the port of Vancouver on the same lines as Montreal. Montreal eliminates all harbor dues, and is practically free to shipping, charges against cargo being very small, and limited to certain classes of outbound merchandise.

It is a time for far-reaching and courageous policies, and, as the tremendous part played by transport in the great business of supplying the world with food is more thoroughly realized, it will be seen that the highest efficiency in the land and water transport services, in all their many ramifications, is one of the first demands of any commonwealth. A great port like that of Vancouver is a national possession, and it should be developed from this standpoint.

ALL AROUND THE FARM

GROWING RED CLOVER.

Hay Is Rich In Protein, Palatable and of High Feeding Value.

Red clover is the most important leguminous forage crop in what is known as the timothy-clover area, which includes New England, the middle Atlantic and the north central groups of states. It is also important in certain sections of the great north-west and in the northern part of the south central states. Where it does well it may be considered as the basis of permanent systems of agriculture.

Red clover grows well on a variety of soils, but is best adapted to deep,

Experiments have shown that the removal of the hay crop does not destroy the value of the clover as a green manure crop. From 30 to 50 per cent of its fertilizer value is probably left in the roots and stubble which can be plowed under. Picture shows turning under red clover for green manure.

well drained clay loams and to limestone areas. On sandy soils it is productive when well supplied with humus. In general it will not thrive on ill drained land or on sour or acid soils. The customary way of seeding red clover is to sow it in the spring on winter grain, which acts as a nurse crop. This is a cheap and convenient method, but it is often unsuccessful on soils which are low in humus content. In that case the surface of the ground is likely to dry out quickly after the grain has been removed, and as a result the clover perishes.

It is best to sow the clover seed in winter grain very early in spring. The small seed disk drill is coming into favor for this purpose and should be used as soon as it is dry enough to keep the machine from clogging.

Another method of treating red clover is to sow it in the late summer or early fall on a thoroughly prepared

CHICKEN CHATTER.

Not enough animal food, lack of exercise and too much confinement are all causes of leg weakness with the early hatched chicks.

Use care in making a sitting hen's nest. Put in some dirt first, then plenty of soft hay or oat straw.

When hatching watch closely that the chicks do not get away from the hen and chill.

Chicks must have all the water they want from the start of feeding.

For the first two weeks feed chicks hard boiled eggs, cut up fine; coarse cornmeal, grit and a good quality of chick food.

BROODER IMPORTANT.

Where Large Numbers of Chicks Are Raised It Is Indispensable.

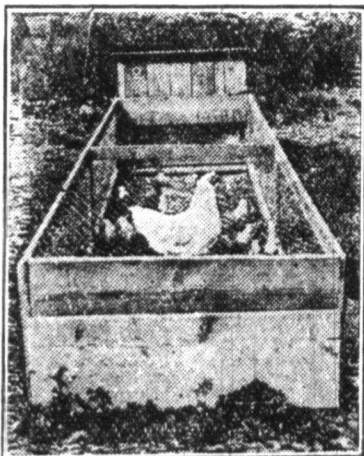

That the importance of the brooder in rearing large numbers of incubator chicks cannot be overestimated is the opinion of N. L. Harris, superintendent of the Kansas State Agricultural college poultry farm.

Some artificial means of brooding chicks must be provided when incubator chicks hatch in cool or cold weather. Where a small flock of birds is to be raised it is not profitable to use either the incubator or brooder, but where large numbers of chickens are handled the brooder becomes a matter of convenience.

Keeping chicks in large flocks minimizes the labor and reduces the cost of houses and yards. Where hens are used for brooders in cold weather only a few chicks can be given to each hen. This requires a large number of coops, and the attendant is compelled to give each group nearly as much attention as would be required for one large flock cared for by the brooder.

A large percentage of the hen brooded chicks suffer from the effects of head lice. These not only are bothersome to the newly hatched chick, but continue to be a source of trouble through the entire season.

Where hens are not available and only a few chicks are to be raised it is possible to construct a homemade

Poultry Farming

MAKING POULTRY PAY.

Systematic Culling of Flocks Would Increase Food Supply.

The statement made at the recent agricultural conference at St. Louis that the poultry products of the United States could be doubled within a year means that if everybody in a position to help did his part $600,000,000 worth of food would be added to our supply this year, according to the United States department of agriculture.

This includes both meat for the table and eggs. Very few farmers practice a systematic plan of disposing of their fowls after they have ceased to be productive, although it is well known that fowls of the heavier breeds, such as the Plymouth Rocks, cease to produce a profitable number of eggs at the end of their second laying year and that this holds true of the lighter breeds, such as the Leghorns, at the end of their third laying year. Consequently, if efforts were made to dispose of all females when their best laying days were over a large quantity of poultry meat would be placed on the market. All poorly developed chickens should likewise be culled out and used as meat. This way of disposing of unprofitable fowls would allow the farmer to feed his grain to younger and more productive fowls.

Caponizing the cockerels that are not intended for breeding purposes will not only increase their size, but will place a more desirable poultry meat on the market. Another practice that should be adopted more widely is that of fattening all chickens that are to be marketed before they leave the farm. This can be done easily by confining the birds for a week or ten days and feeding them a good fattening ration. They will come to market then in better condition, and the farmer will receive a water grain very early in spring. The small seed disk drill is coming into favor for this purpose and should be used as soon as it is dry enough to keep the machine from clogging.

Another method of treating red clover is to sow it in the late summer or early fall on a thoroughly prepared seed bed. This, however, is not practicable in the more northern portion of the clover belt. A seed bed should be finely pulverized, thoroughly compact and comparatively free from obnoxious weeds. The seeding should be at the rate of ten to twelve pounds per acre of clover alone or of six to eight pounds when seeded with timothy. On heavy soils the seed should not be placed over one-half-inch deep and on light soils not over one inch.

Red clover makes a splendid pasture, but there is danger that cattle and sheep which are turned upon it in early spring or following heavy dews may bloat. The practice of including a good part of timothy or blue grass in red clover pastures practically eliminates this danger. When intended for hay red clover should be cut as soon as it is in full bloom. When the stalks have thoroughly wilted and before the leaves have become dry and brittle the hay should be raked into windrows for curing. These should be put into cocks which will turn water to some extent, and left there until sufficiently cured for hauling. Exposure to bad weather darkens the hay to considerable depth in the stacks and seriously reduces its feeding value. For this reason it also pays to store clover hay under cover. The hay itself is rich in protein, palatable and of high feeding value.

Increasing the Egg Supply.

The number of marketable eggs can be increased by following a few practical suggestions, says the United States department of agriculture. Among the most important of these are the production of the infertile egg after the breeding season is over and the proper handling of eggs by the farmer before sending them to market. The infertile egg is obtained when all male birds are removed from the flock. This does not decrease the number of eggs produced, but it does increase greatly their keeping qualities. The production of the infertile egg and the proper handling and marketing of eggs by the producer would increase tremendously the number of marketable eggs each year by diminishing the quantity that are rendered unfit for food.

Breeds For Small Flock.

For the family which wishes to keep poultry for home consumption rather than for the market the so called general purpose breeds are better suited than what are known as the egg laying breeds. Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and Orpingtons are all good varieties for the average person who does not intend to go into the poultry business on a considerable scale. These breeds are good layers, and they also make good table poultry.

The Poultry House.

The prime essentials for a small poultry house are fresh air, dryness, sunlight and space enough to keep the birds comfortable. For the general purpose breeds about four square feet of floor space should be allowed for each bird. The fowls should also have as much outside space as possible to run in.

The chicken coop and screened run shown herewith provide safety for the hen and chicks from predatory foes. The wire screen is an effective barrier against hawks, cats, rats and other foes of chicks.

brooder. These usually require considerably more attention than those on the market, but will give fairly good results.

The most common method of heating these homemade brooders is by means of a jug of hot water. A box which contains sufficient room for from 50 to 100 chicks and which is tight on all sides excepting the front is the first requirement. Some method of ventilation should be provided on the top of the box. A two gallon jug of hot water furnishes the heating plant. The jug should be wrapped in burlap to protect the chicks and aid in retaining the heat. This brooder will keep a limited number of chicks perfectly comfortable.

There are nearly as many makes of brooders on the market as there are incubator factories in the country. Many of these brooders are so cheaply constructed as to be in constant danger of fire. Many small brooders are on the market, however, which are practically fireproof and which have a capacity of from 50 to 100 chicks.

Care of Chicks.

Provide the chicks with clean fresh water until they are a month or six weeks old.

After the first few days feed daily cut onions, green alfalfa, sprouted oats or some other suitable green feed unless chicks can get such material on range.

Feed charcoal, grit and bonemeal separately in a suitable feed hopper.

Plenty of exercise on range and plenty of green feed and bonemeal will prevent leg weakness.

The picking or cannibalism can be prevented by providing plenty of animal food, green feed, exercise and by putting a little salt in the mash, not over one-half of 1 per cent.

Skim milk or buttermilk given the chicks to drink in a sanitary drinking vessel is excellent for promoting uniform and rapid growth and is one of the best preventives of bowel trouble. —Iowa Agricultural College.

Spade Up the Runs.

If you are keeping your chicks confined in small runs be sure to either move them frequently or spade over the ground, mixing some slacked lime with the turned over soil. This will prevent the soil from becoming foul.

Grants for Soldiers.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 7. —The Senate has given third reading to the Soldiers' Repatriation Bill.

The Australian Senate Repatriation Bill provides a maximum grant of £500 to each settler on land. It is estimated that £32,000,000 will be required to provide this bonus, not including the sum for British soldiers, who are to participate equally in the grant as far as finances will allow.

Wooden ships are to be built in America to combat losses by submarines.

be adopted more widely is that of fattening all chickens that are to be marketed before they leave the farm. This can be done easily by confining the birds for a week or ten days and feeding them a good fattening ration. They will come to market then in better condition, and the farmer will receive a profit for their added weight.

The greater production of turkeys, ducks, geese and guineas, all of which can be profitably raised and a ready market found in most sections, would increase the supply of poultry meat considerably. The production of ducks especially should be emphasized at this time because of the rapidity with which they grow. Ducks of most of the meat breeds, properly fed and managed, frequently weigh from five to six pounds at ten weeks of age. It is estimated by poultrymen making a specialty of growing ducks that the feed cost per pound of producing duck meat ranges from 8 cents to 12 cents, depending upon the current prices of grain and other feeds.

Cost of Keeping Chickens.

The actual economy secured by the keeping of a small flock of chickens depends primarily upon their egg production, and this in turn is largely a matter of care. Under favorable conditions, however, it is estimated that 150 eggs the first year and 120 the second is a fair return from the ordinary hen. On the other hand, at least 25 to 30 cents a year must be expended for grain and other feeds, the exact amount depending upon the quantity of table scraps and green and insect food available. Where all the feed must be purchased from $1 to $1.25 is allowed. —United States Department of Agriculture.

Turkeys on the Farm.

A more profitable side line than turkeys for the farmer can hardly be found for those situated on grain or stock farms, according to F. S. Jacoby, professor of poultry husbandry at the Ohio State university. Improper feeding, combined with close confinement, has been the cause of many failures in turkey raising. Given free range on the average farm, the poult can generally pick up their own living. One light feed per day for the purpose of inducing them to come in at night is sufficient.

TRIM THE COLT'S FEET.

Unsoundness Often Caused by Neglect of Horse's Hoofs.

Trimming feet of horses is one of the important factors in profitable horse production, according to Dr. C. W. McCampbell, Kansas State Agricultural college.

The colt's hoofs must be given constant attention from the time the colt is foaled until it reaches maturity. Even then they need considerable attention. Often during colthood the feet are left to care for themselves. This neglect results in later life in many of the unsoundnesses common to horses' feet and legs.

Unsoundness that may be caused by lack of care when the horse is young are sidebones, ringbones, splints, bone spavins, bog spavins, corns and cracked hoofs. All the unsoundnesses tend to lower the value of the horse. The time to prevent any of them is when the colt is young and his bones and tendons are yet plastic.

Catharines, Ont.—"Two years ago in a very nervous, generally run-down condition, so that I awoke in the morning more tired than when I retired. The doctor thought I had heart trouble and treated me for it but I got no benefit. I heard of Dr. Pierce's remedies through a friend who had been to your Invalids' Hotel for an operation (which proved entirely successful) at once got the 'Favorite Prescription' I took three bottles along the end of three weeks I felt cured and have been strong without a single bad spell. I had taken it about three months ago and glad to tell any one how your medicine has healed me."—JOHN LEWIN, 53 Niagara St., St. Catharines, Ont.

The mighty restorative power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription speedily all womanly troubles to disappear, brings back health and strength to the irritable and exhausted woman. It is a wonderful prescription prepared from nature's roots and herbs with alcohol to falsely stimulate and no more to wreck the nerves. It banishes, headache, backache, low spirits, nervousness, worry and sleeplessness surely without loss of time.

Sleepy Time Story That Is of Interest to Children.

A BOY WHO WAS VERY LAZY.

Stubborn Youth Who Was Careless About Study and Behind in His Lessons Gets a Surprise—After a Time He Is Cured of His Slothful Ways.

When I was a boy, said Uncle Ben to little Ned and Polly Ann, we were taught to march, and that brings me to my story about a boy who WOULDN'T MARCH.

I hope you will always take an interest in the marching. Little Tommy, a boy I have heard about, did not care to march. He was fat and would rather sit still than run about.

Tommy's mother had told the teacher that he must take part in the marching or any exercises that might take some of the extra fat off his lazy bones.

So the teacher, tried her best to get Tommy interested in marching. He was a new boy in her class.

But one morning when Tommy had missed a good many words in spelling and had not had the right answer to many of his arithmetic questions he was a bit sulky. Instead of blaming the mistakes on his own carelessness he was vexed with the teacher and cross with the children who had done their work right. It was very silly of Tommy.

And when the teacher threw up the windows and said, "Now the class will stand up, ready for the march," Tommy planted his feet stubbornly on the floor and settled back in his seat.

The teacher looked surprised when Tommy did not rise with the others. She said: "Tommy, please rise. You know we are going to march now."

But Tommy growled, "I don't want to march."

The little girl at the piano began playing the march. The other children stepped briskly around the room, and when the last child passed Tommy's desk the teacher was behind him. She whisked Tommy out of his seat and, with her hands upon his shoulders, pushed him into place and walked him around the room with the rest of the children.

At first Tommy was too taken back to object, but when he found himself being marched around the room against his will he squirmed and struggled so much that the rest of the children who had been trying to keep sober burst out laughing.

"Don't you think you could march by yourself now?" whispered the teacher, and Tommy murmured, "Yes."

With his eyes on the ground he tramped briskly after the other children, and from that day to this the teacher has had no trouble in getting Tommy to join in the marching.

A Woman's Problem

How to Feel Well During Middle Life Told by Three Women Who Learned from Experience.

The Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Read these letters:—

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I started the Change of Life five years ago. I always had a headache and backache with bearing down pains and I would have heat flashes very bad at times with dizzy spells and nervous feelings. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new person and am in better health and no more troubled with the aches and pains I had before I took your wonderful remedy. I recommend it to my friends for I cannot praise it enough."—MRS. MARGARET GRASSMAN, 759 N. Ringgold St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Beverly, Mass.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for nervousness and dyspepsia, when I was going through the Change of Life. I found it very helpful and I have always spoken of it to other women who suffer as I did and have had them try it and they also have received good results from it."—MRS. GEORGE A. DUNBAR, 17 Roundy St., Beverly, Mass.

Erie, Pa.—"I was in poor health when the Change of Life started with me and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, or I think I should not have got over it as easy as I did. Even now if I do not feel good I take the Compound and it restores me in a short time. I will praise your remedies to every woman for it may help them as it has me."—MRS. E. KISSLING, 931 East 24th St., Erie, Pa.

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women may receive free and helpful advice by writing the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Such letters are received and answered by women only and held in strict confidence.

In order to make the preparations of boy scout leaders and scout masters a regular feature of the curriculum of Teachers' college, New York city, the board of trustees accepted the offer made by Cleveland H. Shadow Tag.

This is a game to play when the sun shines. One person is chosen to be "it" and must run after the others. He does not have to tag them, however. He must only step on the shadow of one, calling that player's name at the same time. When he succeeds that player must change places with him.

A Beautiful Visitor.

There are several species of the woodpecker family, with which young people in the country and even the city are familiar. They are the flicker, the downy woodpecker and the red headed woodpecker. All are handsome birds, and they make a lot of noise pecking at the bark of trees and also cutting holes for nests. The bird pictured is a young red headed woodpecker, one of the handsomest of the tribe.

China's Population.

Something near ninety-five per cent. of the population of China is confined to one-third of the area of the country, with a density of two hundred to the square mile. Five per cent. of the population inhabits sixty-five per cent. of the area, with a density of ten to the square mile. Lack of transportation facilities and the absence of adequate means of protection account for the sparseness of settlement in the outlying dependencies. About forty per cent. of China's population is in the provinces south of the Yangtse River, with a density of two hundred and thirty to the square mile.

SHE HAD AN EXTENSIVE TRIP.

Making Her Home Among the Paraphernalia of a Scientific Journey, Mrs. Rice Accompanied Her Distinguished Husband Through South America.

With a homemade wireless outfit in the primeval forests of the interior of South America, thousands of miles from home, the party which accompanied Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice on their recent exploration were in constant touch with this country and the news of the world as the United States entered the war against Germany.

The Rice party returned recently after an extended trip on the steam yacht Albertd. "We carried a homemade wireless apparatus," said Dr. Rice, describing his adventures, "constructed by a man who had been in Brazil and knew the requirements. And it was simply wonderful to be able to be in those primeval forests thousands of miles away and receive from the Arlington station the tickings that spelled so much for science.

"After New Year's day we started back from the first stage of the trip which took us 2,100 miles up the Amazon river to Iquitos, Peru, which is 1,100 miles farther than Commodore Benedict took his yacht, the Onelda, several years ago.

"We started back, stopping at Manaos, a thousand miles from the mouth of the Amazon. Leaving the Alberta at Manaos, we went on our tour of exploration up the Rio Negro in a forty foot launch especially constructed for that purpose.

"Mrs. Rice is the first white woman who ever penetrated that almost inaccessible region of the South American continent. She bore the hardships and dangers of the expedition most courageously and was received with a respect bordering upon worship by the native women. They knew me from my previous trips there during the af-

"These Indians are a very hospitable and intelligent people. They would not accept money, but we brought them many presents of knives, fishhooks, jewelry, machetes, looking glasses and beads and left them a goodly store of medicines; with instructions how to use them.

"One of the purposes of our expedition was to make a good hydrographic and geological map of the Rio Negro, to link up the work on which I have been engaged so many years—the making of a map of the northwest Amazon valley. Another purpose was to test the practicability of determining the difference of longitude by wireless telegraphy. To accomplish this we employed the Arlington station's signals, using Washington as the primary meridian, being thus enabled to check up secondary and tertiary meridians."

Mrs. Rice was the widow of George D. Widener, who perished on the Lusitania.

Summer Hats.

The larger brimmed hats will certainly make their charming appearance as the summer days approach and Old Sol's rays threaten feminine complexions. And as the hats widen they will assume a much flatter outline. Some designers have shown the Watteau shepherdess hat for summer, that having the very bewitching turned up back.

Bath Togs.

Foulard in white spotted with huge circles of black makes an effective bathing suit and is worn with black or violet cap, shoes and stockings. Roman striped taffetas are also in the front rank for extreme novelties, as are the sports silks with exotic splashes of color in all sizes of dots and squares and ovals.

Forage For Pork and Mutton.

Forage crops will materially reduce the cost of producing pork and mutton. Do not attempt to grow young hogs on forage crops alone. Supplement the forage with some grain. Brood sows can be kept on forage crops after the pigs have been weaned. Make as many pounds of gain as possible from the use of forage crops. They will reduce the cost of such gain.

Fashion Fancy.

Some amusing little tricks found in French dressmaking are used to get the effect of a barrel skirt. In a suit of reseda green homespun that has the sweater type of coat the skirt has a deep plait at the side pointing forward and caught in just below the knee with a short strap and buttons so as to give a slight barrel effect.

A GREAT BARGAIN.

The war map issued by the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal is now ready for distribution. It is certainly a great map and a great help in following war news. It is greatly praised by returned officers and men. The price of the 'Family Herald' is now $1.25 a year, a smaller increase than was expected, and with the map given with each subscription it is cheaper than ever. The map alone would cost as much. The paper and map are given to both new and renewal subscriptions at $1.25 a year, but the map cannot be secured otherwise. The Family Herald is the greatest family and farm paper on the Continent and a great credit to Canada.

THE LATE JOSEPH WALLACE AMEY.

The subject of this sketch passed to his eternal reward on 1st August, in his seventy-first year. Deceased was a son of the late Edward Amey, Moscow. At the age of twenty-eight years he was united in marriage to Charlotte Sigworth, Hartington. Although his suffering was indescribable at times, he bore it all with Christian fortitude, never murmuring or complaining, but always thinking and doing for others. The funeral service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. Mr. Tucker, Deseronto, from the family residence, Deseronto Road, thence to Deseronto cemetery. Besides a loving wife, he leaves seven children to mourn his loss. The children are Archie Amey, Deseronto; Elmer Amey, Belleville Road; Curtis Amey, at home; Mrs. D. Bantforth, Chaplow, Ont.; Mrs. B. McCabe, Watertown, N.Y.; Mrs. Robert Martin, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and Miss Evelyn, at home, all of whom visited him during his illness. He also leaves a brother, Mr. Ira Amey, Napanee, and two sisters, Miss Ida Amey, Napanee, and Mrs. Sidney Lee, Minneapolis, Minn.

Save Your Eyes Half Seeing is Half Living

You may be suffering eye strain with headaches, nervousness, indigestion and many other ills traceable to the eyes. Sometimes the lights, electric or bright sun-light cause eye strain.
What ever your trouble may be,
we recommend having your eyes properly examined.
